British Columbians on Sunday will regain that extra hour they lost in April.

Daylight saving time ends on the weekend and citizens when retiring Saturday night should put their clocks back one hour so they will be on Pacific standard time when they wake up Sunday morning.

Green Challenges Reds:

Map Controls For Disarming

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Canada challenged Russia's Premier Khrushchev yesterday to put forward detailed proposals for control of the "total disarmament" program he advocates.

Assassins

Ceylon Premier Wounded

COLOMBO, Ceylon (UPI)—Two men dressed in the saffron robes of Buddhist monks shot and critically wounded Premier Solomon Bandaranaike and Labor Minister M. P. de Zoysa today.

Bandaranaike was shot point blank in the stomach with a .45 calibre automatic on the verandah of his house as he rose from the floor where he had prostrated himself in obeisance to the two men.

One of the men whipped out the automatic from under his robes and fired two shots at the premier who clutched his abdomen and ran into the house. The assailant then fired four more shots.

CRITICAL

The premier was rushed to Colombo's general hospital where an emergency operation was performed. He was reported critically wounded although he did not lose consciousness.

Other visitors swarmed over the would-be assassins and overpowered them but in the scuffle another man, his name not known immediately, was stabbed critically.

Police said the new labor minister who took office June 9 following months of bitter labor disputes that tied up Colombo's harbor was shot in the same manner at about the same time. His condition was reported as critical.

Governor General Sir Oliver Goonetilleke summoned an emergency meeting of the cabinet for 3 p.m.

Canadian External Affairs Minister Howard Green, in a policy speech to the United Nations General Assembly, underlined the necessity for foolproof controls in Khrushchev's or any other disarmament system.

Mr. Green also appealed to the Soviet Union to co-operate in efforts to regulate the peaceful use of outer space, expressing the hope that the Russians would end their boycott of the UN committee on this problem.

RADIATION HAZARDS

He also said Canada would make a proposal to this session of the General Assembly on collection of information on the hazards of atomic radiation.

Mr. Green announced that Canada, as its contribution to World Refugee Year, would admit "a substantial number" of European tubercular refugees and their families at government expense.

PLANS WELCOME

Mr. Green welcomed proposals outlined to the Assembly last week by Khrushchev and by British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd. But like Italian Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella, who spoke Wednesday, he emphasized the need for controls. Both Italy and Canada are members of the new 10-nation committee that will resume arms discussions at Geneva next February.

"For the moment," Mr. Green said, "let me say that I am entirely sympathetic with the general objective stated in Mr. Khrushchev's proposal—namely, a world without arms. We would all like to see general and complete disarmament. However, we are looking forward to more detailed proposals designed to this end, particularly with respect to control."

MUTUAL CONFIDENCE

"The central question of disarmament turns on the ability of states to find a basis of mutual confidence, and this is realistically reflected in Mr. Lloyd's proposals. That confidence must be such as to enable states to strike a balance between the obvious advantages of liquidating the burden of armaments and the political and military risks for 3 p.m.

Believes U.S. Wants Peace But Re-Emphasizes Trade

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nikita S. Khrushchev said last night he would go into cold war talks with President Eisenhower today convinced the American people want peace.

He said the U.S. position on disarmament and trade would be the acid test whether their government feels the same way.

The Soviet premier's position was reported by guests at a dinner who sounded him out on his hectic cross-country tour and his attitude as he prepared to meet with President Eisenhower at Camp David, Md.

Three newsmen who attended the dinner said he declared: "The impression I've gained is that the United States does want agreement with us and wants to live in peace."

See other Khrushchev Stories on Page 2

But then, asked by former army secretary Frank Pace Jr., whether he believed the U.S. government to be peace-loving Khrushchev replied:

"That depends on the situation. If the U.S. government renounces disarmament, one would doubt its sincerity."

Trade Is the Test

Khrushchev also was said to have emphasized the importance he attaches to increased U.S.-Soviet trade. He was quoted as saying: "We want to trade with you because we believe trade is the litmus paper (test) to indicate whether you want to live in peace with us."

The dinner for Khrushchev, which followed a reception for the premier at the Soviet embassy, was given by Eric Ridder, publisher of the Journal of Commerce. Most of Khrushchev's responses to dinner questions were relayed to newsmen by reporter members of the Ridder family.

They said that for the most part the Soviet leader appeared to be in a "conciliatory" mood.

Khrushchev attended the reception and dinner after returning here from Pittsburgh, the last stop on his 8-day transcontinental trip. He appeared in a good humor upon his arrival, smiling and waving to greeters.

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Khrushchev's travelling companion, hailed the Soviet leader's amiable frame of mind as a good sign for the talk due to get underway late today.

At Pittsburgh, Khrushchev declared that Russia intended to take over world leadership from the United States. But such statements did not appear to have the bite of some threats uttered by the premier during his tour.

Reception Warmer

Khrushchev was greeted upon his return to the capital by a crowd estimated by Washington Police Chief Robert V. Murray at 100,000—or about half the number that turned out to see him when he arrived from Moscow 10 days ago. The crowd was orderly and gave him a somewhat warmer reception than before.

The test will come tonight when the leaders of the world's two most powerful nations sit down at Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland's quiet Catocin Mountains. There they will see if there is any chance of easing cold war tensions.

They will discuss until Sunday morning such East-West deadlocks as the German problem and disarmament. Then Khrushchev, and possibly the president, will give public reports.

Khrushchev obviously enjoyed himself at the embassy reception given for him by Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov. He rubbed shoulders freely with some 450 guests jammed into the building, including Vice-President Richard Nixon and pianist Van Cliburn.

He extended a warm welcome to Nixon and an even warmer one to Cliburn, the young Texan who captivated Moscow last year when he won the Tchaikovsky prize. He hugged the pianist, kissed him on both cheeks, then passed him along to Mrs. Khrushchev who did the same.

Near Mob Scene

After the reception, the unpredictable premier touched off a near mob scene by suddenly deciding to walk a block and a half to the Sheraton-Carlton Hotel.

He was surrounded by a dozen Soviet security agents and a huge crowd of reporters and photographers, some of whom leaped over hedges and raced across lawns to keep up. Khrushchev halted and conversed volubly with a woman who called him in Russian. The woman would say only that she was from Detroit.

When he arrived at the hotel the crush of people was so great that they swept him past the official greeters and on into the lobby amidst much tumult. Guests at the dinner included 22 top U.S. businessmen and industrialists.

During his Pittsburgh stop, Khrushchev held out another olive branch by assuring a second American woman, Donna Armenas, 24, of Wickliffe, Ohio, that her family would be permitted to return to this country from behind the iron curtain.

He told her to expect her mother and brother "very soon" from Lithuania. They went there after the outbreak of Second World War and were refused permission to leave. Khrushchev made a similar promise to a Chicago couple 24 hours earlier.

Last Stop on Tour

Pittsburgh was the last stop of Khrushchev's Atlantic-to-Pacific tour, a trip that carried him from the halls of the United Nations to the hurly-burly of a Hollywood sound stage. There were stops at San Francisco and an Iowa farm as well.

The premier's plane landed an hour late at Andrews air force base, Md., on the outskirts of Washington.

Henry Cabot Lodge, the United Nations ambassador who accompanied Khrushchev on his transcontinental tour, reported that the Soviet premier appeared to have held up well under his rigorous schedule.

"He says he's not tired and he certainly seems to be feeling fresh," Lodge said. He is obviously in a good humor and that is what we were hoping for. He gives me the impression of being in good humor and feeling well."

Khrushchev appeared to be especially buoyed by the reception he received in Pittsburgh on the final day of his trip. He was cheered a number of times in the strike-hit steel city and also hailed as "Nick." Aides said he was "elated" by the reception.

Thatcher

Liberal Leader Ex-CCF

REGINA (CP)—Former socialist W. Ross Thatcher was elected leader of the Saskatchewan Liberal Party Thursday and promptly promised CCF Premier T. C. Douglas "the toughest fight of his political career."

Victory over three other candidates came on the first ballot. As is customary in Saskatchewan political conventions, no vote figures were given out, but it was learned unofficially that Mr. Thatcher had won almost a four-to-one majority from the 645 voting delegates.

Mr. Thatcher, a socialist member of Parliament for 10 years, broke with the CCF party in 1955.

Strachan

University For Free CCF's Aim

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan told a Kasko meeting last night that ultimate objective of a CCF government would be free university education.

He said "our immediate objective would be the reduction of fees."

He added that a CCF government would move immediately to rectify the "poor relation" situation presently enjoyed by the University of B.C.—"a situation brought about by the deliberate and shortsighted policies of the present government."

Dad Blames Hospital In Death

Talk of Racing World

Talk of the racing world is Pete Clark, 17-year-old first-year apprentice from Red Bluff, Calif., who set B.C. and probably Canadian records with three winners at Sandown Park yesterday to make his total eight victories in eight starts over three days. Here he's with Loretta Babe, his second winner, who came home by a neck in the fifth race. See story, Page 10.

Another Explosion

U.S. Orders Probe Of Space Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—The entire American program in the space probe field will undergo restudy as a result of yesterday's explosion of an Atlas-Able rocket being readied for a shot at the moon next month.

This was disclosed by an unidentified spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration shortly after the big rocket blew up on its launching pad at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

He indicated the accident might affect not only the two shots originally scheduled for October and November but others planned for the distant future.

"It's like when you have an airplane crash," the official said, "you hold an investigation to see what happened."

He added it now is unlikely there will be an attempt in October.

This was another blow to American scientists hoping to match Russia's moonshot of a week ago. Placing a satellite in orbit around the moon is considered more difficult than hitting the surface.

Tibet Rebels Using Knives

NEW DELHI (AP)—Tibetan guerrillas are waging war against Red China's troops with knives, old firearms and whatever weapons they can capture, a brother of the Dalai Lama said Thursday.

Odds Narrowing On U.K. Tories

LONDON (UPI)—Britain's general election race slammed into noisy high gear yesterday with signs pointing increasingly to a photo-finish Oct. 8.

Although Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's reigning Conservatives still were favorites, odds on them were narrowing. Some experts no longer ruled out the possibility of a narrow win for the opposition Laborites.

With just two weeks before polling, Macmillan and Laborite chief Hugh Gaitskell—both acting every inch the confident politician—barricaded their way through rival 2,000-mile whistle stop tours against mounting barrages of noisy heckling.

Experts now concentrated their attention on about 50 so-called "marginal" constituencies out of a total of 630. They agreed that, barring a completely unexpected landslide, the final outcome would be decided in these seats.

Vancouver Soaking A Record

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouverites sloshed through the wettest September day on record here Thursday when 2.12 inches of rain fell in the 24 hours ending Thursday night. Downpour lifted September's total rainfall so far to five inches.

Plane Blast Kills 48

BORDEAUX, France (CP)—A French DC-7 airliner bound for West Africa crashed, burned and blew up just after takeoff here late Thursday night, killing 48 of the 60 persons aboard.

Plastic Bag Menace Grows

CHICAGO (UPI)—Autumn has magnified the plastic bag menace to children, an article in an American Medical Association publication said yesterday. Shred the bags or tie them in knots and put them in a tightly covered disposal can, parents were told.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

PARIS — I took the night train from Stuttgart, and slept across the French border in a comfortable berth.

That is the ideal way to cross a frontier—in your sleep. The wagon-lit (sleeping car) attendant takes your passport and a customs declaration. If you're lucky—as I was—nobody disturbs you.

Why can't all frontiers be passed so easily? After a depressing tour of refugee camps, I feel as though I had been released from jail. The camps gave me a sense of helplessness and frustration. I found it painful to try to write about them.

Now I'm in a train rumbling through the outskirts of Paris. The sun is shining, and I feel properly alive again.

I am to meet my wife in Paris. We arranged our rendezvous by remote control. Peggy sent me a cryptic wire to Stuttgart saying that she would meet me at the Hotel Angloamerica, Rue St. Lazare. At the end she added: "No money left."

Did she mean that I had to wire her some money? If so, she is out of luck. The wire came too late for that.

Our time and money are running out. We'll be able to afford only a glimpse of Paris. However, that is much better than not being able to go there at all. Or is it?

I had a wagon-lit compartment wholly to myself, although I paid only for one berth. It was comfortable, but it had no towels. I opened a door that led—I thought—to a wash basin, and found I had let myself into someone else's compartment. Luckily for me, it was a man. Otherwise I might have been called upon to explain myself to a gendarme.

Canadian To Ask For Son

MONTREAL (UPI) — A 39-year-old violinist who left his son in Latvia in the Nazi invasion of 1943 hopes to win the boy's freedom from Premier Khrushchev in Washington this weekend.

George Lapenson, radio and TV soloist and concertmaster for a Montreal orchestra, said the Soviets kept stalling his requests that his son, now 18, be allowed to join him in Canada.

"Perhaps Mr. Khrushchev will help me," said Lapenson. He said he would drive to Washington for a Saturday appointment with state department officials and possibly an interview with Khrushchev.

Lapenson, a British subject, married in Latvia in 1940, but was forced to flee, leaving Egil with his wife, in 1943.

Green Asks Reds For Controls Plan

"This balance can be reached, I believe, only through supervised disarmament. There is, therefore, an inseparable relationship between disarming and control and this must be reflected in any practical plan."

'OPEN SKIES'

Mr. Green declared that Canada still stood ready to accept the "open skies" proposal put forward by the United States last year and rejected by Russia.

Mr. Greer said Canada had agreed to serve on the new, 10-nation disarmament committee "in the belief that it would facilitate direct negotiations among the great powers." But he suggested that the new committee report from time to time to the UN disarmament commission.

OTHER POINTS

Mr. Green made these other points: Nuclear testing: "Whatever the solution, it is of utmost importance for the three nuclear powers to reach agreement on this central question of the control system."

East-West talks: "We meet in a period when there is some diminution in world tension—largely due to the friendly exchange of visits this year between the leaders of great powers. These visits could be the starting point on a new road which would lead away from all the friction and distrust which have developed since the Second World War."

Nikita Swaps Watch for Cigar

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Offer a fellow a cigar and you never know what may happen. If the fellow is Premier Khrushchev you may wind up with a wrist watch.

In the Mesta Machine Company plant Thursday a factory worker impulsively offered Khrushchev a cigar — one of a five-for-39 cents kind.

The Communist leader accepted it with a smile, stripped off his wrist watch and handed it to Kenneth Jackey. If Jackey was surprised at that, he got even a bigger surprise a moment later when Khrushchev also handed him a gold medallion. The medallion commemorates Russia's successful rocket flight to the moon earlier this month.

The wrist watch was identified by a member of the Russian party as a Zvezda (Star) model and worth about $125.

Some other Russians said $25 to $40.

A group of Russian newspaper men who were on the high value side were asked if any of them had a Zvezda watch. All shook their heads in the negative.

"It's too much of a luxury for us," one of them said.

Nikita Using Old Script

By STERLING SLAPPEY

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The amazing Nikita Khrushchev, both front man and back room boy of the Soviet Union, is following the same script he used three years ago when he last took a good look at the Western world.

The great difference between the routine in the United States and the 10-day grand tour of Britain in 1956 is that he left straight man Nikolai Bulganin behind in oblivion.

This correspondent was with Khrushchev through the British tour, and the similarities with his American tour are astonishing.

Khrushchev told Britons that cruisers were out of date. In California he said the Soviet Union is scrapping cruisers.

In Britain Khrushchev got into an argument with Aneurin Bevan. In San Francisco he tangled with Walter Reuther. He told the British Labor men he got on better with Conservatives, and he told Americans he liked their business leaders rather than some of their labor leaders.

He complained he could not get in among the British and American people. But he seldom gets in among the Russians either.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Nikita S. Khrushchev missed a golden opportunity Thursday to see the depth of the abyss that separates Americans from Russians when a debate developed between Soviet reporters covering Khrushchev's tour and some of the workers.

A tall Uzbekistani asked Tom Sommers, a machine operator, about his wages, hours, vacations time and so on. Sommers said he gets a three-week vacation every year.

"Only three weeks?" said the Russian. "I get four."

The Russian asked if Sommers' wife works.

"We have two small children," Sommers said. "She takes care of them."

"But in Russia?" said the other. "The state brings up the children in nurseries and kindergartens. They have better facilities for rearing children."

"There's nothing so good for a child as his own home and his own mother and father," Sommers replied.

"I tell you the nurseries are better," said the Russian. "Why don't you believe me? I tell you the truth but you are like your newspapers, you don't believe me that our way is better."

Mrs. Natilia Sergeeva, a Soviet editor, asked Vincent Graner why he wasn't on strike.

Graner said he didn't belong to a union and added, "We have a choice in this country."

"We don't need strikes," she said. "In our country the workers get everything they want without strikes."

"They'd be dead if they did go on strike," Graner said.

"You've been brainwashed."

'Give Me a Divorce' Plea Stuns Peter

By Joseph Henry Steele

Soon after my return from a tour with Ronald Colman early in 1946, I had lunch with Ingrid.

"I have exciting news for you," she said. "You know how much I've wanted to play Joan of Arc all my life. At last I'm going to do it."

"A picture?"

"No. Let me tell you all about it. Last spring, Maxwell Anderson came to see me and said he had a play for me. What is your play about?" I asked.

"He said, 'Joan of Arc.'"

"I'll do it," I said.

Talk, Talk, Talk

"Without reading it?"

"Yes, without reading it. That's how badly I wanted to do Joan. When the chance came, I was determined to grab it. But then started those business talks—talk, talk, talk, between lawyers, agents, Anderson and Peter. Terms, percentages, angles, clauses—ugh, I was getting sick."

"Two or three days later, Peter said, 'I think we're working out a good deal on the play.'"

"I said, 'You'd better, because I have already signed the contract.'"

"When Peter finally recovered from the blow he went over the contract again, word by word. When he got through he looked relieved. He said, 'It's all right. You can always get out of it.'"

"But I don't want to get out of it! So now I'm all set to start rehearsals when 'Arch of Triumph' is finished!"

Bombshell

One evening in early October, 1946, when her work in "Arch" had finished, Ingrid and her husband, Peter Lindstrom, sat before the fireplace of their home. All day long and all through the evening dinner which she had hardly touched, a bedlam of thoughts had raged through her consciousness. Little had been spoken between then, and that little of no consequence. She stared at the wavering flames until the riot subsided.

Then she heard herself say, "Peter, give me a divorce."

When 12 years later, at her country house in France, she told me about this incident, Ingrid said, "He looked at me stunned. He just looked at me. He couldn't say anything. And I was surprised at myself. I don't know why I said it. No, there wasn't another man, or anything like that. It was just that we had grown apart; we had very little in common any more."

Kept Silence

She refused to say more about the incident that portended the breakup described in the first instalment of this story.

In October, 1946, Joan of Lorraine went into rehearsal in New York. While the rehearsals progressed, Dr. Lindstrom took a flying trip to Sweden to attend to some business matters.

With Ingrid's dream of

ordered champagne and we skooked to the opening of Joan of Lorraine, followed in rapid order by skookals to Ingrid and anything else we could think of. After each skook, however, Lindstrom's glass required a complete refill.

Wine Flowed

A second bottle was quickly followed by a third. In an hour or so, under the stimulus of gulped champagne, dormant moods rose to the surface. I was still ranking under the French embassy incident.

"Good Lord, Peter," I said, "that's not water you're drinking."

"That started him needing me."

"Please don't quarrel," said Ingrid, but made no move to defend me.

"Yah, Joe's getting very important," the doctor pursued. "He wants to walk proudly into the French Embassy with Ingrid on his arm."

"Please! Stop it—please!" Ingrid broke into tears. "I don't want to lose any of you."

Presently, emotions spent and tensions gone, we were on our way back to the hotel.

Late in the morning Polangin phoned, "I don't suppose you heard Sheila Graham last night. She said Ingrid and her husband were having differences, that they were on the verge of a break-up. Anything to it?"

Rumor Denied

"Certainly not," I declared. "You've seen them together. Did you notice anything off-beat?"

"Lorraine" was well received by the critics in Washington and when the company moved on to New York, Ingrid Bergman and Joan of Lorraine made Broadway history.

Lindstrom informed me that the Joan of Arc film deal with Liberty Pictures had collapsed, saying only that satisfactory terms could not be reached. A day or two later Sam Briskin, one of the toughest business men in the industry, asked if I would come to see him.

"I guess you know we couldn't get together with Lindstrom," he said, in his office at the Paramount Studio. "The good doctor is a hard man to do business with. If he had his way there would be nothing left for us."

What About the Cities?

PREDICTING that highway construction requirements of the near future will impose an additional burden on users, a Toronto taxation expert has advised municipalities to abstain from taxing motor vehicle owners as a means of increasing their own revenues. In an address to the Canadian Good Roads Association in Vancouver Mr. F. H. Finnis, municipal research associate of the Canadian Tax Foundation, recommended that in the vast majority of cases authority to tax motorists should be centralized in the provincial governments.

In other words, the motorist should be the provinces' pigeon, to be plucked by no one else. In theory that is all very fine but where does it leave the municipalities? At the same convention there was another prediction that the number of cars in Canada will be doubled in the next 20 years. Most of the automobiles now registered—probably 80 per cent at least—are located in the cities and municipalities and used mainly on urban streets. Who is going to pay for the construction and upkeep of municipal streets if all the money that can be wrung from the motoring public goes to the provincial government to pay for main highways, used by only a small proportion of car owners?

The user-pay principle as translated into highway financing policy may appear sound if one doesn't examine it too closely; but in this province at any rate the users to a very large extent are paying for the wrong roads. Highways are for the benefit of a province as a whole. In B.C. they are being financed mainly by people who seldom travel over them, but who do wear out the city and municipal streets. Yet for this wear and tear of urban streets, to say nothing of original construction costs, the local councils receive nothing at all out of the tens of millions of dollars collected through gasoline tax and licence fees.

If as Mr. Finnis maintains the highways are going to need all the money derived from motoring—and more than present taxes yield—where does he suggest the municipalities should turn for funds for their needs, likewise increasing? In most B.C. municipalities heavily travelled thoroughfares are breaking up for lack of money to put and keep them in good shape. Residential streets are far below standard for the same reason—all because the entire revenue derived from their use is going to the Province. In organized areas the whole load of cost for street construction and maintenance falls on the property taxpayer, though streets like education have long ceased to be exclusively a service to property.

To point out that the present appropriation of automobile tax revenue is unrealistic is not to suggest that municipalities, too, should tax car owners, who are probably the most heavily taxed section of the public already. There is a multiplicity of automobile taxes now, and another one would be a mistake. But highway needs notwithstanding, the municipalities are entitled to a substantial share of the proceeds from services they provide. As the situation is now, the municipalities are building and maintaining houses for someone else to grab the rent.

Pension Changes

IT is being suggested at Ottawa that the old-age pension scheme is coming up for revision. The existing pension fund, raised by a percentage allotment of income and sales taxes, is deeply in the red and some adjustment is necessary if it is not to encroach on other revenues. Apparently the idea of a wholly new contributory plan has been shelved as being too costly and difficult, although in the absence of details it is impossible to judge.

Instead there is talk that a contributory feature will be added to the present scheme. That means therefore that it will become doubly contributory, since the tax impost is of this nature. Being indirect however the latter is not noticeable, whereas a new and direct contribution might seem to some people yet another tax burden. If it were too large there could be considerable dissent.

On the other hand most people would probably be willing to increase their contribution for the benefit of a larger old-age pension. At $55 per month, while this amount is a boon to many, such a pension is only a partial answer to the needs of some older citizens. Private and business pension schemes exist but a large number of the public are unprovided for in this respect. They depend a lot on the universal pension at 70 years of age, and in advance of this stage of life likely enough would be glad of the chance to increase the amount by a reasonable direct contribution to the pension fund.

Another aspect of the universal pension coming under consideration is the often made proposal to let pensioners live where they please and not compel them to spend at least six months of each year in Canada. One might argue against the beneficence of granting the pension after only 10 years residence in this country—which could invite elderly newcomers who would not then make ample mark in the life of the nation—but firmly support having no strings attached to the pension itself. In principle it is presumed to have been earned, both by service and tax impost, and it should be paid freely no matter where the recipient lives.

Welcome Declaration

ANNOUNCEMENT by Trans-Canada Air Lines that it wishes to retain its flying charter to serve the tri-city run on this coast, and intends to put Viscount planes on the route in a year if the charter is undisturbed is very welcome. This is what Victoria City asked for formally in its submission to the air transport board when the issue first came up. Some equivocation in the TCA stand at that time led to premature talk of replacement, but if the nationally-owned airline is content to continue in the service it is difficult to imagine the air transport board initiating any change. During the 40 years that Victoria has had flight connection with the mainland, TCA has done most to develop the route in scheduled flight.

It was in 1943 that TCA turned its attention in earnest to the possibilities of the tri-city air route; after several previous charters had been issued and not followed up and a long period of intermittent air service between Victoria and Vancouver had resulted. TCA "went to town" on the route, and both cities responded happily. The record since is well known, and it is one of the best for any comparable flight service in Canada.

If TCA stays in the ring, and that is certainly expected now, its tri-city air charter may well prove to be its most profitable investment on the western seaboard.

Membership Bid Loses

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

THE Russians are well aware that seating of Communist China in the United Nations would be a tremendous Red victory and a destructive blow to United States defence strategy in the Far East.

That strategy is based partly on the maintenance of a strong deterrent force on Formosa, an island of some 12,000,000 Nationalists, many of whom dream of retaking the mainland one day.

UN membership for the Reds would weaken and demoralize this force and, in the view of some U.S. officials, might even sway some of the Nationalists to join the Communists, reducing the effectiveness of the Formosan bastion.

It would appear on this basis alone that the world will have to make tremendous strides toward an assured peace before the U.S. would change its China policy—a policy backed in the UN Tuesday when the General Assembly shelved for another year the question of seating the Reds.

But there are other factors the free countries also must consider. Some countries are split on how the UN should function. Some, like India, believe the UN should be an open forum for all countries. Others, like the U.S., believe a country should not be admitted unless it shows signs of responsibility, of being able to behave itself.

The U.S. argument against Red China's admittance might have been weakened if, in fact, the Reds had shown serious intentions of living at peace with their neighbors. But this has not been the case.

Though Premier Khrushchev has delivered a strong bid to the UN for China's membership and his deputy foreign minister, Vasily V. Kuznetsov, has portrayed Red China as peace-loving, reports of mass slaughter in Tibet, skirmishes on the India-China border and uprisings in Laos tell a different story.

Letter from London

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

THE trees have begun their autumnal disrobing, but like Gipsy Rose Lee they are coy and tantalizing and in no hurry to get the act over. This foliage striptease is exactly as it sounds, a provocative and exasperating business. By the time the trees have fully exposed their unadorned charms my back will be bent like a hoop and I'll be wishing I was a disciple of Archie McKinnon.

A lovely thing indeed is a tree but I much prefer it with its clothes on.

Novelists often incorporate the traits of friends into their stories, although dispersing these among different characters. The death of Field Marshal Lord Ironside this week is a reminder that he was in one particular respect the prototype of Richard Hannay, the central figure in several of John Buchan's tales of adventure. As a young officer he hoodwinked the enemy by serving on the German general staff in East Africa during the first war, and the present Lord Tweedsmuir is on record as revealing that his father based Hannay's German experiences in "Greenmantle" on the exploits of Ironside.

In a book comparing Russia today with what he knew of it 20 years ago Sir Fitzroy Maclean, who spent some time with the Yugoslav resistance forces in the last war, finds that the change has been from Leninism to a Slav parody of the British Victoria age. The new rich are as privileged, as insular, as smug, and as imperialist as was Dickens' Mr. Podsnap.

Answering the question, "Are not these people all Communists?" Sir Fitzroy writes: "They believe in world revolution just as implicitly as the Victorians believed in the Second Coming. And they apply the principles of Marxism in their private lives to just about the same extent as the Victorians applied the principles of the Sermon on the Mount in theirs. Neither more nor less."

One thing about total disarmament of all kinds, a world without armies and arms, is that rifles and revolvers in civilian hands would have to go too. This seems a corollary, otherwise armed forces could exist in disguise. Such a situation would be a boon to revolutionaries bent on upsetting governments. At present this is a tough proposition because governments have the military means to suppress uprisings. But if nobody had firearms and sticks and stones were the only weapons these would be available to everybody.

Somewhat I don't think Mr. Khrushchev would want his peace formula to extend that far.

Former Saanich councillor William Kersey has shown me a copy of the last issue of the "British Gazette" of 1926. This was the paper produced by the government for eight days during the General Strike in Britain of that year, under the aegis of the then chancellor of the exchequer, Winston Churchill. Its circulation leaped in a week from 230,000 to 2,209,000 at a penny a copy. There is an appos story extant, although not told in this issue of the Gazette, of typical Churchillian flavor.

The emergency editor went down to the press room and saw large enamel jugs standing on the floor. "What have they got in those?" he asked. "Beer, sir," was the answer. "Have they got enough?" "Oh yes, sir, plenty." "Nonsense," said Churchill, "nonsense. There is no such thing. Send for more." A pound note changed hands and another legend was added to the Churchillian story.

Land of Discarded Utilities

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

THE British prime minister, Mr. Harold Macmillan, has promised us a minister for science if his government is returned to office on Oct. 8. Mr. Gaiskill is promising us a minister for Wales, but no one is offering us a minister for discarded utilities. Let me hasten to say that I am not being rude to British Railways.

This once green and pleasant land is beset by discarded utilities. There are old army camps, disused airfields, old coal mines with their ugly slag heaps, gashed hillsides where the slate quarry used to be, holes from which gravel has been taken, chalk pits and clay pits, and hills shaved bald of timber by greedy industrialists of the last century.

These days we are adding disused railway tracks, little pieces of weedy road which have been left behind in some highway improvement scheme and in our industrial areas solid masses of hideous masonry which once used to be a foundry or a factory and have just ceased to be useful.

The latest development is the discarded cinema, the dilapidated theatre, and the abandoned car on a parking lot. There are times, places and routes which must make some of our visitors believe that Britain is really a thoroughly dilapidated country.

Now if we had a minister for discarded utilities something could be done about it. His job should be to repair and beautify the countryside, and see to it that once profitable industries should not scar the countryside. Something has been done in some ways—there has, for example, been some extensive reforestation of some of the mountains of South Wales. They are less bald than they used to be. Some of the old slag heaps have been made to grow grass through gentle encouragement, but there remains a great deal of unnecessary ugliness.

Obviously beauty is not an election issue. No one to my knowledge has ever voted for scenery. No one seems to care very much what anyone does provided they get paid for it—but a minister for discarded utilities would see to it that despoiled beauty was repaired.

Is there any reason why every disused quarry should not be turned into a Butchart's Gardens? Nothing except money. Is there any reason why the national coal board should not fill up its underground holes with slag so as to prevent subsidence on the one hand, and ugliness on the other? Is there any reason why an industrialist should not have to contribute to a sinking fund during the years of prosperity to make good the damage he may do after commercial advantage has been fully exploited?

The New Superstition

'Science' vs. Will Power

(From The Toronto Daily Star)

DR. JOHN LINTON, Canadian head of the Intercollegiate School of Alcohol Studies, intrigues us in his description of "a major breakthrough in meeting the problems of alcoholism." He says that research in Saskatchewan shows that alcoholism may be due to chemical imbalance in the body; and so it may prove possible to correct alcoholism by chemical therapy.

This idea is certainly typical of 20th century thinking: Don't cure your drinking problem by deciding to quit, or using self-control! Instead, take a pill or a hypodermic injection, full of chemicals.

In this modern outlook man is a sort of biochemical walking vegetable, all his mental and physical reactions enslaved by the twin tyrants of environment and heredity; his only hope of social adjustment is a judicious application of vitamins, hormones, chemicals and tranquilizers, plus the ministrations of the psychoanalyst.

Under this theory Man has no will or mind of his own, and therefore no responsibility. Guilt and sin are medieval concepts. The "crazy mixed-up kid" who shoots another youth came from a broken home, so he's not responsible. The alcoholic had a dominating mother, so he's not responsible, and it's all very sad.

Yes, but it's also getting a little unbelievable.

Nearly all tradition on which our Western civilization is based argues differently: classical Greek philosophy and the Judeo-Christian religions are premised on belief that man's actions are not governed by environment, heredity or a determinist universe; but on belief that man's free will can decide his present and future. Implicit in this is the idea that man must take the responsibility for his actions.

No believer in free will would quarrel with the idea that modern medicine, psychology and sociology modify some aspects of that belief. But to allow these sciences to supplant or abolish free will is not "scientific." It is just the opposite, the start of a new superstition: a society in which modern witch doctors, psychoanalysts and biochemists would treat patients with new incantations and fetiches. Alcoholics will be shot full of chemicals; street bullies will be treated for vitamin deficiencies or brainwashed on couches.

This is not a plea against a helping hand to alcoholics, drug addicts or anyone else in dire straits. Just the opposite; our tradition demands that help be extended, and not smugly righteous help either.

But for the alcoholic or narcotic addict, help is effective only when it is truly wanted; only when the recipient of help realizes, in the desperate struggle up from the bottom, the essence of success must be his own will power.

The Eyes Have It?

(From The Toronto Globe and Mail)

MEN, says a writer in The Globe and Mail, "overwhelmingly prefer women to wear rimless glasses." So what happens? Four-fifths of women users wear horn rims. It is an interesting study in perverseness, not as a motive but as a coincidence. Women, the article says, treat glasses as a "some-time thing," to be donned on need, doffed as quickly as dispensable. Perhaps, then, they consider horn rims look occasional, while the rimless lenses look like a habit.

Whatever the reasoning, the upshot proves our old theory that, popular illusion aside, women aim to impress one another and don't care two whoops or even one whoop what the timid sex thinks of their styles.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

FOR several years past the Canadian National Exhibition has been trying to pass the three million mark in its annual attendance. This year, during the closing days of the fair, its top executives as well as some of the city fathers of Toronto went to considerable lengths of imagination, and energetic exhortation to puff the exhibition over the three-million mark, once more in vain.

What is this fury for size? Why must everything increase? If a thing is good, why is it not left alone? Apparently the very essence of our belief, in this day and age, is that nothing is a success unless it grows bigger. Thus we see businesses of every description aiming desperately at an increase over last year. The whole emphasis of our time is on growth. There appears to be no means of expressing or conceiving of quality unless we state it in terms of increase. If a thing grows, that proves it is better.

What utter nonsense. In nature, many of the cheapest things are those that grow fastest—weeds, toadstools, puffballs, trees like the Chinese elm, fish like carp, birds like the starling, in which the infant is bigger than its parents in three weeks.

Maybe the reason the National Exhibition doesn't go over three million is that there are quite a number of people who want to see something other than crowds. What a shock to business if people began buying the less popular brands because they are tired of being in the mob.

Smoke Screen

There is an old saying, "He who hesitates is lost." A decade ago the West had nuclear dominance. It was used at Hiroshima against Japan, a then Nazi supporter, Nazism having become defunct. For years now we have been playing hide-and-seek with its brother, Communism. I saw in The Colonist that five groups have met advocating disarmament. Why not hand over our democratic way of life to the Communists? They would be tickled to death at our acceptance of their smoke screen bluff.

Is not death preferable to an enforced hypocritical slavery? Khrushchev is a very plausible and excellent confidence man. The lid is bound to blow off sometime. Why not hang onto what preparedness we have?

NEVILLE E. FAIRWEATHER.

Extend Summer Time

I agree with the editorial of Sept. 19, "Why So Early?" Why not extend daylight saving time for a couple of months more. As you say, electric light bills would be smaller; that's one big item indeed, and you can't beat natural light. It would be a beneficial move all around.

I can tell you also that many of us old-age pensioners would surely appreciate the extension of daylight. Our days are getting shorter anyhow, and to get a bit more daylight would be a godsend.

(Mrs.) E. MARSHALL.

Murder Made Normal

That plea for research to be added to the three Rs now constituting Canadian education, as suggested by Dr. J. W. T. Spinks to the Canadian education convention, seems to be a well established need in view of recent happenings where death has resulted from organizations of teenagers hoodlums whose teaching seems to have lacked the discipline he mentioned.

In St. Catharines, Ont., on Sept. 18 Sidney Katz, editor for Maclean's Magazine, in an address stated that murder is becoming normal to tiny television viewers. He stated that in Toronto the average child spends about 25 hours a week watching TV, and that as a consequence to a small child of five or six years television is much like a mother.

But Mr. Katz stated passively is only one of the dangers, since this also destroys sensitivity, and makes the child immune to horror. He also recognizes the fact that this dependence upon pictures is destroying the child's ability to think, or to plan games and pastimes apart from television.

And Mr. Katz ended by saying the cure for this disease of passivity and growing love of crime rests with the parents, with parental guidance, authority and discipline—but what a hope.

L. J. PEPPER.

1085, Verrinder Avenue.

The Small Voice

In this period of world tension there seems so little that we, the average person, can do. Our voices are so small. But there are those who speak out and are heard. If their words offer a glimmer of hope towards peaceful co-existence, can we not listen and appraise their words carefully and speak to them from our hearts, to assure them that we do long for a peaceful world; that we are trying to understand the views and needs of others, and that the words of our Christian faith are not meaningless symbols to us?

The hopes and fears of us, the common people, are seldom expressed. Can our leaders speak for us if we do not voice our views?

This is written with the hope that the desks in the Russian Embassy, the White House and our Parliament in Ottawa will be flooded with letters expressing our desires and hopes for a world at peace.

Queen Cancels TV

Christmas Greeting Heard but Unseen

LONDON (AP) — The Queen, expecting a baby early in the new year, will not make her usual television appearance on Christmas Day, Buckingham Palace announced yesterday.

Instead, she will record a Christmas message to the Commonwealth in advance, for sound broadcasting only. Copies will be sent to radio stations throughout the Commonwealth. The announcement said it will be a message rather than a speech, and will be shorter than usual.

The royal broadcast linking the Commonwealth has long been part of the Christmas tradition. It was started by the Queen's grandfather, King George V.

The Queen appeared in good health when she visited a movie studio with her 10-year-old son, Prince Charles, this week.

Ready to Face Public Onslaught

Preparing their defences for bombardment of questions expected at next week's public meeting on subject of dollars and education are these panel members, from left: C. E. Espley, education department; W. C. Gelling, school board finance commit-

Fortune-Seekers Race Hurricane For $2,000,000

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI)—A band of fortune-seekers who struggled for six months to salvage a sunken tanker raced against a hurricane threat yesterday on their way to port with the $2,000,000 prize.

A stretch of water along the Maryland-Virginia coast of about 100 miles and a final berth in a salvage yard lay ahead of the amateur salvagers. To the south was Hurricane Gracie, churning several hundred miles to the south.

The Coast Guard assigned a cutter to escort the broken hulk of the tanker African Queen which was taken under tow by a tug for the slow voyage down the Atlantic coastline.

LIKE FICTION

If the eight men aboard make it to port, it will be the climax to a yarn that sounds like fiction.

Six months ago they boarded the African Queen which broke in two, on a shoal off Ocean City, Md., and was abandoned by her owners.

Under international law, the amateurs claimed the wreckage, and armed themselves with shotguns to keep away fishermen and looters who wanted to strip her of her fittings.

ONE DROWNED

They took over the larger stern section of the ship. One amateur salvager was drowned when the bow section capsize. Another effort is now being made to raise it.

A 400-foot stern section, oil-slick and rusting in places, was floated earlier this week and immediate plans were made to tow it to Norfolk where it will be sold for an estimated $2,000,000 dollars.

Job Picture For Winter Looks Dim

Labor Minister Wicks said yesterday he is "not too optimistic" about British Columbia's employment prospects for the coming winter.

However, he said he expects unemployment will be alleviated by the federal-provincial municipal winter works program.

Asked about winter employment prospects, the minister referred to the recently settled eight-week strike of 27,000 coastal woodworkers and said:

"The fact is that the IWA strike so slowed down the economy that it affected retail sales and that in turn affected employment."

"I am not too optimistic. You can't have a rash of strikes and then not expect to have unemployment."

School Critics Invited

A panel of experts plans to talk sense about the dollars and cents of education at a public meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday night in North Ward School.

"The idea is to have a lively meeting that will give a clear picture of how money is spent on education," said one panel member.

TIME TO TALK

Panel moderator Mrs. A. B. Thompson, a school trustee, said last night "we want to straighten out those people who say:

"Education costs too much; it isn't worth the cost; we should spend more."

"We say," the moderator continued, "that it's time to talk about dollars and education."

AIRING SET

Mrs. Thompson said members of the public can decide for themselves about education policies after five experts have been intensively quizzed by three interviewers.

"All the important aspects of this controversial topic should be thoroughly aired," she said.

Among these will be: 1, why education costs so much; 2, how the money is spent; 3, what the taxpayer gets for his money.

Three interviewers on the panel will be Mrs. B. H. Byers, president of the Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council; Hugh Stephen, past-president, Victoria Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. H. L. Smith, past-president, Women's Canadian Club.

New York Rallies

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market Thursday enjoyed its greatest rally in nearly two years as it continued to rebound from the sharp August-September decline.

London Dull

LONDON (Reuters)—Gilt-edged securities were generally dull yesterday but the rest of the stock market was helped by the good rally on Wall Street.

Steel shares were slightly improved. Leading electrical equipments were better and there were occasional improvements in engineering shares. Textiles advanced and leading stores showed useful gains.

In the foreign market, Greek bonds led further ground. In rails, Canadian Pacific rallied and other trans-Atlantic stocks were adjusted to better levels. Canadian bank shares showed some further sharp gains.

Victoria Unable to Handle Demands for 'Diamonds'

Request that the city provide home fields for all Victoria Little Leagues of young baseball players was referred to Greater Victoria Inter-municipal committee yesterday by city council, as well as to city parks committee.

"We couldn't possibly handle all of them in the city," Mayor Percy Scurrell said.

Over objections of the advisory planning commission, council lent a favorable ear to request for rezoning of property on Oak Bay Avenue, between Davie and Redfern for service station use. Property is now zoned for apartment use.

The owner, unable to proceed with apartment construction, had offered it for sale for months without an offer, council was told.

Council referred to its harbor and shipping committee a request from Angus H. Johnson of Vancouver for support for his brief to the federal government seeking establishment of a coast guard service.

Expenditure of $2,325 to make changes in the centre strip of Arena Way and other improvements in connection with the Hudson's Bay Company's new parking building was approved.

"They have spent $500,000, and that's going to help taxes," Ald. Geoffrey Edgell observed.

Preparation of a bylaw for the trade licensing of private hospitals run as businesses at $25 a bed, with a maximum of $280, was approved after some debate.

Ald. Wilson proposed that before going to the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention next year, city delegates should get together and state their views on all the resolutions to be discussed.

At last week's convention, she said, she was ready to speak in favor of one resolution but two other Victoria delegates opposed it, and "I thought it would present a jagged front if I spoke for it."

Council asked public works committee to bring in a report on the major projects that could be included in a winter work program with federal and provincial help.

Siamese Twin Dies in Vain

CHICAGO (UPI) — Surgeons lost a battle last night to save the lives of five-day-old Siamese twin girls who were born sharing the same heart and liver.

Doctors announced that Marie Ellen, who was given the vital organs in a separation operation, had joined her sister, Mary Helen, in death.

Mary Helen's life was sacrificed in order to give Marie a chance at life.

Cockney Killer Laughed at Law

He Got Away with Murder

WINTERTHUR, Switzerland (UPI) — British desperado Donald Hume told a Swiss court yesterday how he murdered and dismembered his wife's lover, held up two British banks, spied for the Russians, and passed a security test in Canada.

Hume, 39, was on trial on charges of murder, attempted murder, and armed robbery for the slaying of a taxi driver and wounding of a bank teller in yet another bank holdup in Zurich last Jan. 30.

Under Swiss court procedure, trials have to open with a detailed examination of the defendant's background.

In a broad Cockney accent, Hume visibly shook his jurors. He calmly recounted how he found Stanley Setty, his partner in a shady used-car business, with his wife, killed him and packed the dismembered body into three parcels which he dropped from an airplane into the Thames estuary.

Grinning he told the jury how he fooled British police and juries into letting him get away with a prison sentence for being an accessory after the fact to murder.

He took advantage of the fact that a crime cannot be tried for the same crime twice in Britain to sell the story of how he murdered Setty to a newspaper for $5,600.

Then he calmly described two holdups of a bank near London Airport last year which netted him $4,760.

Asked whether he had worked as a spy after getting out of a British prison in 1958, Hume mentioned two trips to the United States and Canada on a passport with a bogus name.

"I took some photographs of the U.S. military airport in Maine, United States, and took them to Eastern Germany and delivered them to the East German government," Hume recalled he had been in a British prison with Fuchs, former British nuclear scientist who passed atomic secrets to the Soviet Union.

The Briton testified the then-jailed Fuchs gave him a message to take to his father, Emil Fuchs, a theology professor in Leipzig, East Germany.

The defendant, who spent much of his time in Switzerland since getting out of prison in Britain, also claimed that after flying to Montreal last Nov. 17 he got a job with an unidentified Canadian electronics firm where he did "theoretical work" and passed a security screening.

Courtroom Parade

'Frail' Car-Hops Tried to Stop Drive-In Fracas

"It seems to me the bravest people in this whole thing were these young car-hops," said Magistrate William Ostler in Saanich police court yesterday, before finding a Sidney youth guilty of causing a disturbance by fighting at a Douglas Street drive-in.

Evidence of the two girl car-hops—described by the magistrate as "frail"—and of other witnesses indicated that only car-hops made any effort to break up the fight at the A & W Drive-In at about 12:10 a.m. Sept. 12.

Convicted on the charge, and remanded to Oct. 1 for probation report and sentence, was John Robert Ewen, Queen's Avenue, Sidney.

SERVING SENTENCE

First prosecution witness was Daniel Thomas McDonald, 846 Shamrock, the other participant in the fight who was sentenced a week ago to one month in jail for his share in the disturbance.

Other witnesses included friends of McDonald; a companion of Ewen's; car-hops Maureen Butler and Shirley Sutton, and two Saanich police officers.

The fight began near the drive-in building, and continued in its and starts for 20 minutes or more, ending at the Douglas Street sidewalk when police broke it up. "If some of the others present had emulated the action of these frail young girls," said the magistrate, "things would not have gone on as they did."

In the same court Roger Lindal, 5191 Gordon, was found guilty of assaulting a police officer and of prowling by night.

He was remanded to Oct. 1 for consideration by Magistrate Ostler of argument by defence counsel James J. Proudfoot on a plea of "autrefois convict" entered in a third charge, of resisting arrest.

GUILTY OF ASSAULT
Sentence on the other charges will also be given Oct. 1.

Lindal was found guilty of assaulting Const. Charles Truett of Saanich last Aug. 16, outside 729 Haliburton. The officer at the time was investigating a parked car, and saw Lindal come from a nearby open field.

Const. Truett earlier asked Lindal where he'd been, and was told "visiting at the house." The officer took Lindal in the car to the house, and when the constable went to knock on the house door, Lindal started to walk away. It was when Const. Truett went to bring him back that he was attacked, he said.

Charge of assault causing bodily harm to a young woman, laid against Guy Le Voir, 350 Wilson, was dismissed.

Magistrate Ostler said there were enough discrepancies in the evidence to arouse doubt in his mind, and Le Voir must have the benefit of that doubt.

CONTEMPTIBLE
"If you did do this deliberately," the magistrate said directly to Le Voir, "you know it; and you should have the same contempt for your behavior as would any decent being."

Le Voir had said a kick in the face sustained by complainant was entirely accidental.

In city police court yesterday Douglas C. Bowen, 1661 Earle, pleaded guilty to making an illegal turn against a red light at Douglas and Yates, and was fined $10.

Mr. Bowen said he did not see the sign forbidding the turn; that it was set back from the corner. He suggested that the sign be placed across

JOHN DIEFENBAKER

U.S. 'Knows' John D.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's consul general in Los Angeles said yesterday more Americans know Prime Minister Diefenbaker than any other Canadian leader.

D. Leo Dolan said not since Lester Pearson has a Canadian public man caught the imagination of the American press as has Diefenbaker.

Speaking his piece to a city constable Wednesday night cost a young man $100 when he pleaded guilty in city court yesterday to obstructing an officer in the performance of his duties.

Const. Douglas Grant said William George Pope, 1601 Esquimalt, kept "butting in" with answers when the officer was questioning a driver in connection with an accident on Walnut Street. After several warnings, the officer said Pope had to be "forcibly removed."

'Why Not Extend $28 Rebate?'

Tax Issue Unites Council

City council went on record unanimously yesterday as objecting to a proposal that tax-exemption of non-profit homes for the aged by municipalities be made compulsory.

Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black told the Union of B.C. Municipalities last week that he was making the proposal to his cabinet colleagues.

Remarks made since then by Premier Bennett, A.I.D. Arthur Dowell told council yesterday, "give reason to believe cabinet will go along with it."

If the government wanted to help out the homes, he said, the best way would be for the government to extend its homeowner's grant of $28 against school and municipal taxes to each unit in the homes.

Otherwise, he said, the taxpayers of Victoria would be subsidizing the people in the homes from outside the city.

Mayor Percy Scurrell said hundreds of elderly taxpayers in Victoria were living on small fixed incomes in older homes, on which taxes had been increased as the result of a provincial order, and "it would add to their burden because they would have to subsidize the few favored ones living in these homes."

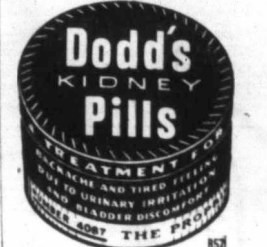

The Kiwanis Village Society, he said, didn't want tax-exemption, "because they know if they get exemption we are going to demand the right to put certain welfare cases in their village, and they want control."

VIEWSON SPORT

By Red Smith

During the Second World War there was a letter from a soldier saying in effect: "I keep reading references to a team called the Black Sox. Will you tell me about them?" In 1943 it was startling to discover a sports page reader unfamiliar with scandalous details of the 1919 World Series, until the soldier's age was noted. He had been preoccupied with the business of getting born when Eddie Cicotte and his crooked companions were telling a Chicago grand jury how they dumped the series to the Reds.

For the first time since 1919, a Chicago team is winning the pennant in the American League. From now through the world series, there will be repeated mention of the Black Sox, probably to the confusion of countless readers under 30. Here is a refresher course for them, lifted in large part from the definitive account of the case written by John Lardner in 1938.

In the judgment of such qualified authorities as Eddie Collins, second baseman and captain of the club, the Chicago team of 1919 was the greatest ever assembled. This was the batting order for the first game in Cincinnati: Shano Collins, rightfield; Eddie Collins, second base; Buck Weaver, third base; Joe Jackson, leftfield; Happy Felsch, centrefield; Chick Gandil, first base; Swede Risberg, shortstop; Ray Schalk, catcher, and Eddie Cicotte, pitcher.

Cicotte master of the "shine ball," was second only to Walter Johnson among American League righthanders. On the same staff were Lefty Williams, Red Faber, Dickie Kerr, Grover Lowdermilk, Roy Wilkinson and Bill James. In 1920 before the scandal broke, four Chicago pitchers—Cicotte, Faber, Williams and Kerr—were to win 21 or more games each, without winning the pennant.

Against these super-stars, Cincinnati was deemed barely adequate, a long shot at 4 to 1 or more, to score the five victories then required. It was not generally known that the Reds had more going for them than the talents of Greasy Neale, Jake Daubert, Eddie Roush, Heinie Groh and the rest.

Slick Man, On Field and Off

Phil Watson, their greatest ally was Gandil, a slick man on the field and off. Late in the season the Sox waited to their pennant, Gandil and Cicotte met in the Ansonia Hotel in New York with Sleepy Bill Burns, a former pitcher, and Billy Maharg, a former lightweight fighter out of Philadelphia. Afterward, Burns sought out Arnold Rothstein, the gambler, watching the races at Jamaica.

"The series can be fixed," Burns said. "They'd want $100,000."

Rothstein rejected the proposition as too risky. He shared the popular belief that a successful plot would necessarily involve too many conspirators to promise secrecy. He always denied taking part in the fix and most historians accept his denial, feeling that for Rothstein's purposes it was enough to know how some of the players were thinking.

For want of Rothstein's financial backing, the plot stalled temporarily. Later, when individuals told their stories, it was agreed that what set it in motion again was the enterprise of Abe Attell, former featherweight champion of the world, in whom Burns confided. Abe contracted to win Rothstein over, and in Cincinnati two days before the opening game he showed Burns, Maharg and Gandil a telegram purporting to be from the gambler, the signal to go ahead.

The series was thrown, but not well. The Sox were a great team and perhaps a greater paradox. Though they could achieve a marvellous togetherness on the field, there was no rapport among them anywhere else. They were split into cliques that detested one another. Considering that the good apples weren't speaking to the bad apples, and that the conspirators were bound together by nothing stronger than mutual mistrust, it is not necessarily surprising that the job was botched.

Indeed, the heroes themselves had cause to suspect that bribes might not be quite honest. The payoff didn't come through as promised, probably because there was so much Cincinnati money showing, and so much talk of hanky-panky, that the bottom fell out of the betting market.

Found It Under His Pillow

The night after the first game, Burns did collect $10,000 for Cicotte, the losing pitcher, who testified later that he found the money under his pillow. He kept it, he said, "for the wife and kiddies." Not more than $25,000 was paid altogether.

Chicago lost the first, second, fourth, fifth and eighth games. The stainless Dickie Kerr won two games, one a three-hit shutout. Chicago's other winning pitcher was Cicotte himself, for not all the bad boys were all bad in every game. Maybe out of skillful habit or maybe to lend the act dramatic conviction, they made some great plays. Shameless Joe Jackson, a nature boy at the plate, led both teams with a batting average of .375 perhaps justifying the urchin who was to beseech him at the trial, "Say it ain't so, Joe," or words to that effect.

Though rumors were flying as the series began, there was almost a year of investigation before the truth came out. Cicotte, Jackson, Williams and Felsch talked to the grand jury. Eight players were tried in Chicago for conspiracy and acquitted. It couldn't be proved that they'd done the conspiring in Illinois, and written statements to the grand jury had disappeared, along with signed waivers of immunity.

Technically, the jury said it wasn't so, Joe, but baseball ruled otherwise. Out of the game for life went Jackson, Cicotte, Gandil, Felsch, Weaver, Risberg, Williams and a utility infielder, Fred McMullin. In their place, baseball got its first commissioner, Keweenaw Mountain Landis.

Milwaukee Braves Choice of Bettors

Milwaukee's champion Braves, back home for their final three games against the Philadelphia Phillies, today were rated 5-8 favorites to win the sizzling National League race.

The home park edge and an extra day of rest for the criples were some of the factors that made the Braves the favorites over the travelling Los Angeles Dodgers and the reeling, all but dead San Francisco Giants.

Under the odds posted by Broadway bookmakers, if you liked the Braves to win their third straight pennant, you put up $8 to win $5. It's the other way around, put up $5 to win $8 if you like the chances of the Dodgers, who are tied for first with Milwaukee.

The Giants, trailing the co-leaders by two games with three left to play and losers of five straight, were all but written off at 30-1 odds. Las Vegas odds quoted the Braves at 5-8 and the Dodgers at 6-5.

All of the major league clubs had Thursday off. This gave the criples a chance to heal and all players another 24 hours to feel the mounting pressure of the pulse-pounding pennant race.

In one respect, the Dodgers, who wind up their thrilling come-back with three games against the Cubs at Wrigley Field, have one advantage. They take on the Cubs in the afternoon today while the Braves face the Phils at night.

If the Dodgers and Don Drysdale (17-13) can beat the Cubs and Glen Hobbie (16-13), the heat will be blazing on the Braves in the evening. It will be fidgety Lew Burdette (21-14) vs. young Don Cardwell (9-10) at County Stadium.

The Giants close out their final three contests against the Cards at St. Louis. In the opener tonight, Sam Jones (20-15) will oppose Vinegar Bend Mizell (13-9).

A tie between Milwaukee and Los Angeles would force a best-of-three playoff with the first game at Milwaukee, Sept. 28, and the next two at Los Angeles, Sept. 29 and 30. Then the Sox, who clinched the American League flag Tuesday, would be host in the series opener on Thursday.

GUMP WORSLEY
... 'the best'

PHIL WATSON
... run's hustlers

Fiery Phil and His Rangers Will Prove Rugged Foes

Leading the New York Rangers into Memorial Arena Saturday night will be a fellow named Phil Watson who has, in the short span of four years, made more enemies in the National Hockey League than anyone thought was possible.

Watson reeks with color. His NHL opponents agree he reeks, but not with color. Many of his "pop-off" quotes and accusations have landed Phil in trouble.

But, Phil never fails to turn out a hustling hockey club. His players will be the first to verify this.

Saturday night Watson and Co. provide Victoria Cougars with their first exhibition test of the young season.

BAD LOSER
Watson is a noted bad loser. He hates to even lose exhibition games and for this reason alone you can be sure that the Rangers will give a good account of themselves.

Most of Watson's players dislike him, to put it mildly. Goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley has drawn countless verbal lashings from Watson and Andy Bathgate, one of the NHL's most productive forwards, threatened to quit hockey last season.

Of Worsley, Watson has often said, "He's fat, lazy, and I don't like him. Gump doesn't like me but he's still the best goalie in our league."

ALWAYS COMES BACK
The pair have often criticized each other and Worsley has been farmed out on numerous occasions. He always comes back.

Appearing along with the Rangers will be former Cougar All-Star defenceman Bill Gadsby, Camille Henry, Eddie Shack, Brian Cullen and Ian Cushman to name only a few.

Rangers last played at Memorial Arena in 1954. No other NHL club has performed here since.

GOOD SALE
According to Victoria manager-coach Hal Laycoe, tickets for Saturday's game are selling at a good clip. "There's even a possibility of a standing room crowd," says Laycoe. Tickets are on sale again today, from 10:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. Same schedule Saturday.

COUGAR TALK ... Laycoe put his club through two heavy scrimmages yesterday in an effort to round his club into shape for Saturday's game.

Rookie defenceman Gordon Ramsay, who in both ... Forward George Ford and defenceman Don McLeod have yet to report. Both were due yesterday ... Cougars will have new home uniforms this season. Bright red sweaters with blue insignia and blue pants with red stripes. Road sweaters are also new. Pattern reversed ... Laycoe plans to phone Boston general manager Lynn Patrick today. Could be he's after a right-winger with only two in camp, Laycoe admits, "Someone just might be available." ... A deal that saw Cougars obtain Don Chupka from Seattle in exchange for Hugh Barlow has apparently fallen through. Barlow won't report.

Ladies Defy Rain
Thursday's heavy rains made things miserable for 57 competitors in the ninth annual Vancouver Island senior ladies' golf association tournament at Uplands club.

However, it failed to stop the proceedings. Big winner of the day was Mrs. A. G. E. Robbins of Victoria club who won the low gross title and the Mrs. Blair Patterson trophy.

Eight Straight Wins For Young Jockey At Sandown Park

Eight times Pete Clark has gone to the post in the three-day racing meet at Sidney's Sandown Park—and eight times he has won.

Owners, trainers, jockeys, players—in fact, everyone interested in the horses—are calling it a fantastic feat.

It's not the best ever, but it's close.

After the 17-year-old first-year apprentice from Red Bluff, Calif., booted home Bramoney in the second race yesterday, Loretas Babe in the fifth and Akin in the six, he was undoubtedly owner of a B.C. record and probably even of a Canadian mark.

What's more, available records show Clark is within one of the U.S. records of nine consecutive wins by 19-year-old jockey Albert Adams in Maryland in 1930.

Believed to be the world record is the string of 12 wins in a row over three days in 1933 by England's Gordon Richards.

The 2,500 punters who braved heavy rain that started after the second race made Bramoney the favorite in that one, but didn't think Clark could make it in the others, giving the favorites' role to others.

And Clark almost didn't make it.

Bramoney took the lead in the second but gave way to Kayo's Boy and only won when the latter broke down on the far turn, suffering a possible broken knee. Clark finished less than a length in front.

In the fifth, Clark was up on Loretas Babe fourth, rated in the odds and only that because she's the smallest horse on the grounds and therefore a sentimental choice of underdog lovers.

Loretas Babe just lasted to beat incoming Jay M Jay by a neck and steady Pro Tick by a further head.

GOING AWAY
In the sixth, Clark had Akin in front by a head halfway, gave way to Rossburn but the jockey, possibly inspired by it all, brought Akin back and they were going away at the end.

Only a miracle will keep Clark's record intact tomorrow. He goes in every race but the last, with Call By in the first, Keats Island in the second, Whizzer K in the third, Fleet Silk in the fourth, Beau Sierra in the fifth and Sleepy Star in the sixth.

PADDOCK PATTEN: Same first post time today, 2:30 p.m. ... Rain cut betting yesterday to $32,358, about $5,500 below the total for the third day last year ... But those who came early stayed at least through the sixth to see if Clark could do it ... Polonez, easy winner of the third race, was the B.C.-bred yearling given away in 1957 by the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association in its annual race in which the prize is a yearling and $2,000. Bill Lochhead won it ... Both quinnells were of healthy size, Bramoney to Legal Action paying $43.40 and Hookhanger to Lady Sadie R returning $70.60 ... Jimmy McDougal trained Dream Lore and Polonez for the day's only double win ... Both Loretas Babe and Hookhanger were sired by Tit Tat Toe.

No Worries Here On Warrior Sale

Manager-coach Hal Laycoe of Victoria Cougars said he was "not surprised" when informed of an announcement from Winnipeg stating that Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, with whom Cougars have a working agreement, have purchased a one-third share in the Warriors from Jack Perrin.

"I knew that Boston had purchased a share of Winnipeg and also that the sale had been completed prior to Portland businessmen buying out the New Westminster Royals," commented Laycoe.

The report from Winnipeg also said that Boston had assigned winger Gordie Redahl to the Warriors and more players were expected to be sent to the Western League club.

Laycoe was asked whether the tieup between Winnipeg and Boston would have any effect on his Cougars who had also been expecting help from the Bruins.

He replied, "I would have been greatly concerned with this announcement if I had been counting on Boston to supply me with many players. As I feel right now, we won't need too much help from Boston."

"We already have Gordie Haworth and Jack Bionda who were sent here by the Bruins. If they had assigned Bionda to Winnipeg, I'd be worried," said Laycoe.

Coho Action Hot, Heavy

The coho run is on in earnest off Sooke and Metchosin, and fishing is good even in the fringes off Oak Bay.

Many limit catches were recorded in Colonist King Fisherman contest entries from Weir's Beach at Metchosin and Juan de Fuca Auto Court in Sooke.

Biggest singles at each point were a 17-lb beauty caught at Race Rocks by Victor Smith, 1630 Broadmead, and entered at Weir's Beach, and a 14-pounder entered at Juan de Fuca Auto Court by W. King, 3240 St. Mathew.

Since the run began Monday, nobody has seriously threatened coho leader Charles Newman, who brought home a 19-pounder in Saanich Inlet in early August. Biggest coho in the contest wins the fisherman a three-horsepower Viking outboard motor donated by Eaton's. Latest entries:

GORDON FASHWAY

... Laycoe's best power-play man

He's Scored 400 Goals But Fash Wants More

By LARRY ROSE

Nothing pleases 33-year-old Gordon Fashway more than scoring goals.

It figures when you consider that Fashway is the all-time goal-scoring champion of the Western Hockey League, with 344 in nine seasons.

ONLY ONE

He is also the only 300-goal scorer in the WHL's 11-year history. Only last winter he scored the 400th goal of his 12-year professional career.

Beat, Beat, Beat

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—

To some San Franciscans, the decline and fall of the Giants has been the biggest jolt since the 1906 earthquake.

Five days ago the Giants were riding high, leading the National League by two games. After three straight losses to Los Angeles Dodgers and two to Chicago Cubs, they are but a gnat's eyelash from elimination in the pennant race.

From plush Nob Hill to North Beach, from city hall to Fisherman's Wharf, here's what San Franciscans are saying:

Nancy Neely, poetess: "The Giants have joined us. They're beat, beat, beat."

Arthur Stang, janitor: "Maybe we ought to send this bunch back to the old country and get a new team. Five games in a row. Gosh!"

Eddie Le McCall, shoeshine technician: "They let us all down. They can go back to Phoenix for some more practice."

George Christopher, mayor: "They made a good fight but everybody can't win. The only pressure it takes off me is I won't have to get 50,000 people tickets for the world series."

The fourth-highest scorer in WHL history, Fash needs only nine points to reach the 600-point mark. And, he needs only 30 points to take over third spot from retired line-mate Bobby Love.

HE'S EFFECTIVE

Statistics are usually drab material but statistics show just how effective Gordon Fashway has been.

A 35-40 goal man each season, Fash has moved to Victoria for the 1959-60 season after spending his entire WHL career with New Westminster Royals.

MOST PRODUCTIVE

Along with Fashway from New Westminster came Arnie Schmutz, Arlo Goodwin, Reno Zanier and Pete Wright. Nobody will dispute the claim that Fashway is the most productive of any of these players.

In past seasons at New Westminster, manager-coach Hal Laycoe, also here this year, used Fashway at his left-wing position whenever the opposing club was penalized.

HERE'S PROOF

"He's the best power-play man I've ever had," insists Laycoe. Proof? Last year, Fashway led the league with nine goals scored while the opposition was shorthanded.

A big forward at five feet, 11 inches, and weighing 185 pounds, Gordie has never been one to miss many games during a season through injuries. During the last eight seasons, Fash has missed only eight games.

DOWN HE WENT

In the 1950-51 season, Fashway attended the Chicago Black Hawks training camp, made the club and appeared headed for a long career in the NHL. However, the easy-going winger became involved in a ruckus with the management and was immediately sent down to Milwaukee.

Several weeks later, Fashway's contract was purchased by the New Westminster club. Detroit Red Wings drafted him following the 51-52 season in which Fashway led the PCHL with 51 goals and collected 85 points, tops of his career.

NO GLAMOUR

But Fash wanted no more of the so-called NHL glamour. New Westminster fans came to appreciate his decision.

Since that time Gordie has never scored less than 33 goals in a season or less than 60 points, and this year he'll be firing goals for Cougars—instead of against them.

MOST CHERISHED

The most cherished possession of Fashway's hockey career?

A bronzed newspaper page mat from the game in which he scored that 400th goal last winter. It is the only page mat missing from the files of the New Westminster Columbian.

TIME WELL SPENT

Vancouver Island Devoid of Moose

"Please tell your readers there are no moose on Vancouver Island," Game Inspector Robert Sinclair appealed yesterday morning.

After The Daily Colonist yesterday morning published a picture of two moose shot "up-Island, in the Rainbow Mountain area," he was besieged with telephone calls from people wanting to know where Rainbow Mountain was and where they could hunt moose on Vancouver Island.

The Colonist is sorry. It had its geography wrong. There are no wild moose on Vancouver Island and Rainbow Mountain is south of Sooke River, east of Callaghan Lake in the New Westminster hunting district, near Garibaldi Park.

Practice Injuries Hit Both Football Teams

Victoria Navy would be doing fine in the Pacific Coast intermediate football conference if they didn't have to practice.

The Tars Wednesday lost a second star due to a practice injury when hard-running but small halfback Gerry Kruse received a severe bruise to his side in a training tackle.

Kruse, who scored Navy's only touchdown in two games with Vancouver Wildcats, likely will be on the sidelines for the important game with Victoria Drakes in Royal Athletic Park at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Earlier, Navy lost kicking specialist Don Little for the season when he aggravated a back injury in practice. John McIntyre replaces Little but Kruse's seconder has not been named yet.

Drakes' injury list includes end-punter Pete Turko and tackles Steve Kapasky and Leo Kozak.

Coach Jack Patrick of Drakes reports most practice emphasis is on running attack, since line blocking at Surrey Sunday was "definitely below par."

Blocking personnel still is being switched while Drakes are going to use a new pass defence Saturday.

Navy coach Don Hamilton says blocking "in general" is getting his eye.

Weatherman Must Smile For Stock Cars to Run

Vancouver Island's stock car enthusiasts are looking for a warm smile from the weatherman and another chance to put the finishing touches on 1959 race title claims at Western Speedway.

The 50-lap Vancouver Island championship, postponed last weekend because of rain, goes this Saturday night on the Langford oval.

The last and longest of major stock car events, the Island trophy will be defended for a second straight year by Victoria's Dave Cooper.

And for a third straight year, Cooper will be out to pin down the honors accorded the Island's No. 1 driver. But the Victoria veteran, who clinched the drivers' point title before this time last year, will have to do it the hard way...

Main fan interest will centre on the points picked up by drivers during Saturday's six-event program.

Cooper presently trails Nanaimo's Bob Clarke in the total number of points earned by drivers throughout the season. Cooper was listed as holding a slim edge over his Nanaimo rival last week, but figures released then by the Vancouver Island Track Racing Association did not include one up-Island race.

The revised, up-to-date point tabulations show Cooper trailing Clarke, 309 1/2-306 1/2.

Third is Nanaimo's Hank Neilson with 293 points while Saanich bulb farmer Al Smith follows with 292 1/2.

Any one of the top four drivers could walk away with the point title. A maximum of about 17 points can be earned by one driver in one night.

Left on the schedule is a Friday night meet at Nanaimo and Saturday's championship race at Western Speedway.

Following are the top 12 drivers:

1-Bob Clarke, Nanaimo	309 1/2
2-Dave Cooper, Victoria	306 1/2
3-Hank Neilson, Nanaimo	293
4-Al Smith, Victoria	292 1/2
5-Dave McLeod, Victoria	214
6-Harry Roberts, Nanaimo	217
7-Doug Powell, Victoria	214
8-Dick Varley, Victoria	184 1/2
9-Ray Pittman, Nanaimo	184
10-Bud Burke, Nanaimo	180
11-Doug Rose, Victoria	149 1/2
12-Bud Hoskins, Victoria	118

Sunday Curlers Pick Gallagher

Walter Gallagher was re-elected president of the Sunday Commercial Curling League at the recent annual meeting, and members chose Earl McBride as vice-president and Winnie Warren as secretary-treasurer.

Members approved a motion allowing only one active member of Victoria Curling Club, men or women, per rink. Season's dues were set at $24 per person, and entries close Oct. 4.

Real 'Stiff' Lands

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Up and Coming, a prized New Zealand race horse scheduled to run in the $100,000 International at Laurel, Md., arrived by air from Australia Wednesday with a sore leg and in stiff condition, both literally and figuratively.

The horse was given tranquilizers in the Fijis and Honolulu. But it still kicked its stall and debarked with stiff muscles.

Along with Up and Coming were four other racers and four kangaroos. All the others took to flying.

The kangaroos were kept crated in the Qantas Sky-master, but the two boy and girl types were let out for a run at the airport. They're going to Johnson City, Tenn.

Up and Coming's owner, New Zealand Noel Simpson, said the horse injured his right hind leg kicking the stall. Simpson didn't think the damage was serious.

Vogel, a 5-year-old from Australia, took the 30 hours of flying from Sydney in style. He's also scheduled to race in the Nov. 11 International.

'They Have No Pride' Key to Sloppy Argos

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ralph Toohy wrapped it up neatly last year when he told an Eastern Canada radio audience that Toronto Argonaut football players should be ashamed of themselves. At the time it was pretty good propaganda because Toohy, a great needer, was a Hamilton Tiger-Cat.

Toohy, one of the game's color guys who never could be accused of lack of desire, piled it on by adding that Argos players had no pride in their profession.

GREAT GOBS

His outburst was made at a time when Toronto fans were heaping great gobs of praise on the Toronto Big Four club. The season was nearly over, Argos emerged out of a one-for-nine win-loss record to go on a three-game winning spree. Some fans were even talking of Argonauts and the Grey Cup in the same sentence.

"They should have been playing that kind of football all season," Toohy jeered. "The only thing the matter with them is that they have no pride."

No one paid much attention to the rough, tough Toohy at the time but his observations were brought into sharp focus this week when coach Hump Pool of Argos became the fall guy for a bunch of professional football players whose sloppy, indifferent play cost the 44-year-old his job as Argonaut coach.

WORST PERIL

The firing pointed up the perils of his profession. It is fashionable to fire the coach while players, bad or indifferent, hold on to their jobs. People have said that Pool was too nice to run the club. It doesn't figure.

Before he went to Toronto in 1957 he coached Los Angeles Rams of the National

Lilies Keep Their Lights On

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

The last of the lilies are making a brave showing in my garden right now. Jillian Wallace, Yellow Tiger, the Golden Harvest hybrids and Lemonade are still going strong, while the glorious blooms of Speciosum "Red Champion" are lighting up the garden with more color than a neon sign.

It is really remarkable how you can have lilies in bloom from spring to late fall, all through ringing the changes in the varieties.

My soil is a little on the light side for lilies, all of which seem to prefer earth with some body to it. I have overcome this and made my bulbs happy by digging quite a big hole, filling it up with a 50-50 mixture of rotted leaves and good topsoil, and setting the bulbs about six inches deep in this. They've done marvellously in this growing medium, and those gardeners who are having trouble with lilies on sandy or gravelly sites would be well advised to try this out.

Peat moss makes a pretty good substitute for the rotted leaves for all the lilies except Lillium Henryi. Henry seems to have taken a dislike to peat, and neither the orange or the lemon yellow kinds would do anything but sulk until placed upon a diet of rotted oak leaves.

This is a good time to get in a few licks on the broadleaved evergreen shrubs such as laurel and aucuba. These should be trimmed with secateurs, simply removing any over-long growths and leaving any full-scale pruning until early next March. Offending shoots may be taken off to a leaf just below the surrounding foliage, but never use the hedging shears on these subjects. If you do, you would cut a lot of leaves in half, and these die and turn brown, making a most unsightly hedge.

Those pansy seeds which were sown in late July or early August have made some pretty husky young plants, big enough to be shifted to their flowering quarters. This should be done fairly soon, before they become too crowded in their coldframe or seed bed. If they are already pushing up and shouldering one another, better cut them back a bit, and in any case, remove any buds which may have formed.

With coldframe-grown plants in particular, it is important to give them plenty of elbow room and a position right out in the open where the wind can blow between the plants. This will harden them up, lessen any tendency to mildew—a very common scourge of pansies and violets—and acclimate them gradually to the rigors of winter.

Some of the squash and vegetable marrows are ready now to be cut for winter storage. While these can be cut in their immature stage for immediate use, they are very poor keepers unless left on the vine until the skin has become so hard you can't dent it by pressing with the thumb-nail. Cut them with a bit of stem attached, and seal the cut end with a dab of vaseline.

Marrows and squash—pumpkins too—like about the same storage conditions as onions. This means a reasonably cool spot but one free from frost, and above all, a minimum of dampness. To avoid mildew, moulds and rotting, they should never be left on the basement floor. Keep them up on a shelf, or better still, suspend them in some kind of a string or netting hammock so the air can get at all sides.

A Sometimes Beatnik

The advance publicity on Tuesday Weld—"teenage gold-digger with sex"—is almost more than mortal man can endure. Certainly more than I can, so I sent over my Operative X12 who is the same sex and has been hardened in the crucible of television to have a talk with the young lady who will be the heroine of "The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis" (beginning on CBS-TV Sept. 29).

Operative X12 found Miss Tuesday smoking a cigaret, eating her lunch, and having her hair dyed—all at once. "Please ask me specific questions. I don't like to speak generally," said Miss Weld, who has just turned 16.

"How about the rumor that you're closer to 27 than 16?" said Operative X12, jockeying for position. (Danny Kaye said of Miss Weld that she's 15 going on 27, a remark that has been widely kicked around.)

"That's true and I'm looking forward to being a teenager—that's the way it works, isn't it?" said Miss Weld, who at 16 already acts as if she's seen and known everything.

"Do you consider yourself a beatnik?" asked Operative X12, groping for the specific.

"I can't deny the fact," emitted the lady languidly. "Sometimes I'm a beatnik, sometimes I'm many other things like—what subject were we on?—oh, about beatniks. I have been beat and I've gone to the coffee houses and I've done the things that beatniks are supposed to do wear dungarees and all that. I think the term has been beat and beat and beat into the ground. It's as bad as teenager, that word. Being adult seems to be very in and a teenager seems to be out."

Miss Weld has already aroused the interest of teenagers and their parents, not all of it favorable, by her lack of interest in propriety.

"I've been labelled a lot of things. I don't care enough to make a stink about it. People are going to say what they're going to say no matter what. For many months I did a lot of publicity. A lot of time and effort was wasted on the publicity because people just went right out and misquoted me. Now I've stopped and I still get as much coverage. I should have stopped sooner. There are pages of misconceptions and even some great quotes I never said. They carry on like mad without me—great stories, great quotes."

It seemed more and more unlikely that Miss Weld was truly 16 but she insists she is. "I don't carry my birth certificate but if you'd like to see my draft card . . . All those stories I'm 27 come from the fact I've been in the business a long time. When I was 10 I looked 18. I wore makeup this thick and I went around thinking 'Goody.' I look 18 and I pulled this one off all by myself." Well, I don't care how old people think I am. Just so long as I know.

Miss Weld, who has caused some commotion in two movies, "Rally Round the Flag, Boys" and "The Five Pennies," has already assembled her own retinue. One of the temporary members was a quiet, slight woman named Mrs. Groetke, of the California Board of Education, who got decidedly testy when Miss Weld plunged into the subject of high school.

"I don't know when I'll finish high school; I think I got a lifetime contract with that school. I hate to even think about it. Most schools missed me right along the way. I never went and they never came after me."

Nowadays every prominent teenager seems to be handing out advice to all the other teenagers. Did Tuesday ever write articles telling teenagers what to do with their love life? "Certainly not," said Miss Weld crisply. "Teenagers don't need advice. All those

Lena Horne to End Career in 1961

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Lena Horne is quitting show business in two years. That's what the famed singer told interviewers in London on her arrival there with husband Lennie Hayton. And I think Lena, who, for me, is the greatest of all balladeers, means it. She has all the money she can use, her daughter is through college, and her son graduates in two years. That's what she has been working for all these years.

Camille Williams, childhood chum and long-time secretary of Debbie Reynolds, has been signed by Dan Dailey for a long-term deal of dancing, and Camille goes back to Europe with Dan in December to film six hour-long spectaculars for television.

Mel Torme is after Ella Fitzgerald to sing the title song of his independent picture, "Night Light," with Mel playing a killer. "So I can't very well burst into song."

Mitzi Gainer and Jack Bean have millionaire Jimmy McEwen ready to finance their musical, "Million Dollar Legs," on Broadway next year.

Phyllis Kirk, lucky girl, is trying to put on 10 pounds!

New star Stuart Whitman is up for the big lover-boy role—Boaz—in "The Story of Ruth." His love scenes with Carol Lynley in "The Hound Dog Man" are "Pure Poetry" to quote director Don Siegel.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

finessed the club jack. West took the queen, cashed the heart ace, and defeated the contract.

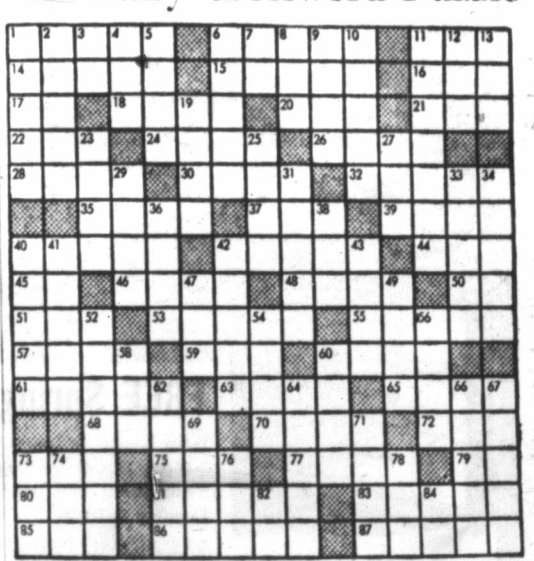

Declarer had been grossly negligent. After East failed to follow the second spade, South must play three rounds of diamonds, shuffling a low club from his hand. West can now win the heart queen and cash his spade, but is then forced to lead either a club or a heart. In either case, South will limit his losses to three tricks. Similarly, after cashing three diamonds, South could have thrown West in with a spade, and the same situation would result. Declarer unerringly discovered the only line of play which could lead to his defeat.

(Special to The Colonist)
NANKING—A warm welcome awaited us in Nanking—the temperature was 116 degrees and the city had gone through four months of drought.

A few miles away from Nanking, as the plane flies, I saw flood destruction that beggars description, although our dedicated Communist guides tried to tell us the glorious People's Republic moved in on flooded areas and cleaned things up immediately.

From the air we could see

Tourist In China

town after town inundated to the roof tops and fields were completely submerged. There must have been great loss of life because there was no place to go. The floods spread for miles across flat terrain.

Flood and drought side by side. Nanking is laughingly described as one of China's blast furnaces. The other is steel-producing Wuhan which I also visited during the tour.

NO COOL AIR

The heat in both places was something I had never experienced before and hope never to experience again. China has not yet caught up with the modern invention of air conditioning.

The city of Nanking has tried to make itself attractive. Its streets are wide and lined with spindly trees but it is obviously the victim of innumerable droughts and the whole atmosphere is parched and dry.

STORMY HISTORY

The contrast in nature is reflected in the history of the city which has been long and stormy.

At one time it was the capital of China and more recently it was the base for Dr. Sun Yat-sen's revolution which began in 1911. He is regarded as the father of revolution in China but he never was a Communist, although he accepted money and arms from Russia.

POLITICAL ADVISER

In Peiping I met a former secretary of the revolutionary who died in 1925. Her name was Lisa Min-Sing and her father was political adviser to Dr. Sun Yat-sen. She herself is a deputy to the National People's Congress.

Mme. Min-Sing told me Dr. Sun Yat-sen's widow, one of the famous Soong sisters (another is Mme. Chiang Kai-shek), has been ill for some time. Mme. Sun Yat-sen is one of the six vice-presidents in the Communist government.

FEW MEMBERS

It is only in recent months that she actually became a party member, although she has been a supporter of the Communist regime ever since it gained power in 1949. Surprisingly enough, only 2 per cent of China's population holds party membership.

Nanking claims with pride to be Dr. Sun Yat-sen's last resting place. In every city I visited there were large and ornate monuments to his memory but his actual grave is in Nanking. He is buried high up in the Blue Mountain.

WINE ORIGINS

Champagne was originally produced in the French province of that name, and port wine in Oporto in Portugal.

'Positively Identified Robber' Freed

'It's Great to Be Out'

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A 22-year-old salesman who was "positively identified" by five persons as one of two armed robbers of a clothing store was released from jail Wednesday following the confession of two other men to the crime.

Clifford D. Isbell, of San Bernardino, Calif., was in jail 27 days on charges of taking $1,242 from the store in nearby Pico-Rivera Aug. 22. He was held despite an alibi supported by nine persons that he was in San Bernardino at the time of the robbery.

"It's a great feeling to be out," Isbell said. "I can hardly believe it's over."

Isbell, a handsome dark-haired man who said he had never been in trouble before with police, was arrested Aug. 28 when sheriff's deputies received a tip that the two robbers lived in San Bernardino.

The man arrested with Isbell was released. But Isbell was put in a police lineup and the store salesman "positively identified" him. He noted Isbell was wearing the same

B.C. Official Praises Firefighting in Alberta

B.C.'s deputy forestry minister, R. G. McKee, who has just returned from the third national forest fire research conference at Waskesiu, Sask., says he was impressed by the Alberta forest service's use of aircraft in forest firefighting.

He said Alberta firefighters demonstrated a new type of helicopter, the Bell 47-J, and the new Courier aircraft, both of which are worth studying for use in B.C.

He said the helicopter can carry 750 pounds compared to 375 pounds by the helicopters now used by the B.C. forest service.

Alberta firefighters, carrying power saws, are lowered to the fire scene by an electric winch from the helicopter on a 50-foot cable.

The firefighter is able within a few minutes to clear a patch for the helicopter to land. Then more fighters and equipment are rushed to the scene by helicopter, Mr. McKee said.

The Courier aircraft is capable of landing three men plus the pilot on 600 feet of runway at 35 miles an hour, he said. It can take off with a 150-foot ground run.

The Alberta forest service is using fields created by the forest service and also discarded landing fields constructed by oil companies during exploration work, he said.

Mayor Drops Hint

Mayor Percy Scourrah appeared to hint yesterday that he will seek re-election in December.

Appearing at a Rotary luncheon for greater registration of voters, he said he didn't want anyone coming to him after the election complaining about not being on the voters' list.

So far, he has not announced his plans, and former alderman J. Donald Smith, M.L.A., is the only one who has said he will seek the mayoralty.

'Atom-Blasted' Victoria Back to Normal

Victoria was back to normal late yesterday after a two-day Canadian Army exercise which first saw the city blown into oblivion by an imaginary atom bomb, then shrunk to the size of a drill hall floor.

The exercise opened before dawn Wednesday when the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, and allied garrison units were called out to rendezvous with a Chilliwack force near Nanaimo.

Some 1,000 troops and 200 vehicles took part in the exercise which was the first major test of the army's new national survival duties on the west coast. First movement of troops out of Work Point Barracks Wednesday was predicated on the imaginary destruction of Vancouver by an atom bomb. As Victoria soldiers moved northwards away from the Victoria target area one company of the PPCLI was cut off by a second nuclear blast which hit near Goldstream. Yesterday, with the Malahat "out of commission" from the Goldstream hit, and with Victoria wiped out in the ensuing blast, the troops started the major part of the exercise—re-entry of a radioactive area.

Vehicles were funnelled back towards the city by the Shawnigan-Port Renfrew-West Coast Road route. In order to simulate the Victoria re-entry problem the city was sketched out in miniature on the floor of Bay Street Armory where radiation detection teams went to work.

Radioactive material previously scattered over the large-scale city map enabled the teams to report areas of contamination just as they would if the city was ever hit. At the conclusion of the exercise around noon yesterday Lt.-Col. J. C. Allen, officer commanding the PPCLI, called it "highly successful."

"It pointed out our capabilities and also some shortcomings which will be overcome," he said. "There is no doubt that with small revisions to our training program the shortcomings will be overcome. If the troops got nothing else, they did, over a 24-hour period, cram in a great deal of vehicle movement over rough terrain. They were briefed on all aspects of the situation and they realize the difficult and important role the army has to play."

Council Orders Study Made

Arena City Convention Hub?

A study of possible adaptation of the Memorial Arena for convention use was ordered yesterday by city council.

Calling for the study by the arena commission, Ald. Hugh Ramsay said Victoria perhaps could learn something from smaller cities. In Kelowna last week, he said, 800 municipal convention delegates and guests were seated in half the arena floor space for hot dinners. "Some who are interested in getting a civic auditorium" might object to adaptation of the Victoria arena, he said, but he thought $50,000 or $60,000 might be enough to enable the arena to be used for big conventions which would greatly expand the city's income, and that sum would be only a fraction of the cost of building an auditorium.

Asking the commission to make a study and report directly to council was "a legitimate request," he said "and we would take it from there."

170 Register For Classes

About 170 Victorians have registered for evening classes starting next week at Victoria College, and more applications are expected by mail.

College officials estimated last night that when all mail applications are in, total number registered should reach or surpass last year's total of 217.

Or It May Be Discarded

City Curfew Law May Be Revived

Victoria's curfew bylaw, which requires children under 16 to be off the streets after 9.30 p.m. unless accompanied by responsible adults, may be enforced.

Or it may be thrown out.

COUNCIL DISCUSSION

One course or the other appears certain to be taken as the result of city council discussion yesterday.

Ald. Elmer McEwen said the bylaw, or the main part of it, had been in effect since 1902, and either it should be enforced or repealed.

"Today parents need some backing up, and if it could be enforced, it would make their lot easier," he said.

QUITE AGREE

"I quite agree that any law that can't be enforced is a bad law," said Mayor Percy Scurrell.

Ald. McEwen said it could be enforced, all right; it would be effective if "we just let them know we are going to do it."

"If the neighbors' children are on the street at night, your children are going to join them, because they're pals," he said.

Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson said she would favor a curfew bylaw if it could be enforced.

ASK POLICE CHIEF

"Why not ask the police chief why he's not enforcing it?" laughed Ald. Arthur Dowell, and council voted to refer the question to the police commission for a report.

Cougar Hunt Starts

DUNCAN — A predator hunter will start tracking down what is believed to have been a cougar that was seen here almost on the city limits and has caused parents to keep a close watch over their children.

James Dewar, game department employee from Extension, and his dogs will try to track down and kill the animal that was last seen going into a farm.

But game officials give little hope that the cougar hounds will be able to pick up the spoor after the heavy rain yesterday.

The animal was first seen Wednesday night by Mrs. William Hall, a resident near Goldstream, about 8 p.m. She called Harry Bradshaw, Somers Road, a local cougar hunter.

The animal was not found. It went into the farm managed by Paul Aldersey, Lakes Road, on Alexander's Hill, about a mile and a half from the city centre.

Army Still Marches on Its Stomach

Work Point Barracks troops yesterday completed a nuclear-age military exercise only to prove again that an army marches on its stomach. These soldiers are getting ready to down hot meal after 24 hours of mobility in first major west coast test of Canadian army's new role of national survival. See story above.—(Colonist photo.)

Egghead Snob? Not at Symphony

The people who support the Victoria Symphony Orchestra are not intellectual snobs, eggheads, long-hairs or squares.

And classical musicians and composers are not, "as some people think, demented individuals, mostly Russian and paranoid . . . who induce a glassy-eyed boredom. . . ."

WAYS LISTED

This is what Symphony Society director Arnold Webb told Victoria Kinsmen last night at the Pacific Club in making an appeal for symphony aid.

In listing the various ways in which the symphony is an asset to the community, Mr. Webb stressed "that the job of educating our children is not complete until we have broadened their musical outlook."

TV RUBBISH

"We must also combat the rubbish and violence on television."

"And an education in music through the symphony can accomplish this," he said. "In just the same way that enforcement of proper dress in our schools has improved the scholastic standing of so many of our students."

DON'T FEAR LABEL

"There's nothing of the intellectual snob in raising cultural levels," he said. "So don't be afraid of this label."

"My circle doesn't attend the symphony just to impress their friends and neighbors," he said.

"We who attend the symphony regularly have a certain standard of dress to maintain. . . . it's not snobbishness, it's just the nature of things. Just like we put on our best clothes to attend Government House receptions."

COMPLETELY WRONG

Mr. Webb said the "longhair, egghead" idea was completely wrong as far as describing such symphony officials as himself went.

"We are down-to-earth, hard-headed, feet-on-the-ground individuals," he said.

In closing, he reminded Kinsmen that season tickets ($9 to $19.80) are available at Eaton's box office.

After the financing is taken care of, he said, "it only remains for the community to enjoy its symphony."

Skullduggery In Lot Sale?

Ald. Arthur Dowell claimed yesterday there was "skullduggery all the way through" in connection with sale of city property on Kingston as an apartment site.

But later he said he would withdraw the word if he could: it had just popped out in the heat of the moment. And he said he didn't mean it to apply to council, but to bidders.

The city offered the property for sale by tender after receiving a first offer for it as an apartment site from a Victoria real estate man.

One bid of $22,000 was received and publicly opened, not from the party originally interested. The council found that the property contained a road allowance the city didn't own, and decided it had to call tenders again after acquiring it.

The second time, the original bidder offered $22,500 and two others bid higher.

Over Ald. Dowell's objections, council authorized sale to the highest bidder.

The matter came up again in council yesterday, and although other aldermen defended the action, Ald. Dowell still held that it wasn't fair to sell to a higher bidder after the original bid had been disclosed.

Fog Wrecks Airport Schedules

Fog-bound airports here and in Vancouver yesterday played havoc with Trans-Canada Air Lines schedules.

Six scheduled flights from Patricia Bay airport to Vancouver and three to Seattle were cancelled, along with a corresponding number of incoming flights, when fog closed over the area.

Weather forecasts indicated that flights would be back on "routine" schedule today, a TCA spokesman said last night.

Only aircraft which got off the ground ahead of yesterday's fog was a DC-3 which took off at 7 a.m. for Vancouver.

City Woman Shocked By Youth of Thieves

A Victoria woman said she was "shocked" at the ages of two young boys who snatched her purse while she was walking along the 800 block of Pandora Avenue about 9.10 last night.

Miss Mary Jackson, 965 Victoria Avenue, said she was walking along the north side of Pandora when two boys about 12 or 13 years old came up quietly behind her, pulled a leather purse from her arm and ran off in separate directions.

She was the only person on the street at the time, she said, and "it was just as if they had planned where they were going to snatch a purse."

"By the time I'd collected myself, they were gone. I was so shocked at the size of the children that I thought I should tell the police," she said.

Her blue leather purse contained about six dollars, some bus tickets and personal papers. Police searched the area but found no trace of the youngsters.

More Blood Needed

The two-day Red Cross blood donor clinic which ended last night in Red Cross House netted only 374 pints, 226 short of the 600-pint goal.

Blood donor panel secretary Mrs. Ralph Thistle said: "Of course we're thankful for what we received, but it's not really enough. Most of it was donated by a few regulars who keep coming back time after time."

"It's not fair that they should carry the whole load," she said. "Today the clinic moves to the Knights of Pythias Hall in Sidney. It will be open from 1.30 to 4.30 p.m. and 6.30 to 9 p.m."

NANAIMO — Herbert Seibner of Victoria will instruct an art class at Nanaimo Senior High School if at least 20 persons sign up for the night school course.

Tiny-But So Important

Chest Fund Campaign To Kick Off Tonight

Victoria's 1959 Community Chest fund-raising campaign kicks off tonight and campaigners have planned a busy weekend to call attention to the Chest and its need for $325,000.

Weekend schedule: TONIGHT — Chest parade starts at Black Ball Ferry wharf.

7.30 p.m. — Opening ceremonies at corner of Yates and Douglas Streets.

SATURDAY — 2 p.m.—Miss Red Feather presides at Victoria-Navy intermediate Canadian football game, Royal Athletic Park.

SUNDAY — 1.15 p.m. — Water skiers leave Inner Harbor for Port Angeles bearing Red Feather message. Special ceremonies, performance by PPCLI drum corps, and skindiving scavenger hunt on Inner Harbor floor follow immediately.

2 p.m. — Arrival at Inner Harbor from Port Angeles.

8.30 p.m. — Special showing of "The 39 Steps" for Chest volunteer workers, Odeon Theatre.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: Our six-year-old son has a habit of taking things from neighbors. He gets into their homes under the pretext of using the bathroom, then helps himself to small objects. He shows me (rather proudly) what he took and tells me where he got it. I always insist he go back to the house and leave the stolen object somewhere.

I've tried to explain he shouldn't take things but he seems to be getting worse instead of better. What shall I do?—WORRIED MOTHER.

Dear Mother: You are fostering this boy's thievery by making a game of it. The next time he steals something make him take it back and hand it to the woman with his apologies. And go with him to make sure he does it just this way.

Many youngsters go through the light-fingered stage. With proper parental guidance they normally stop as they get older.

It's a form of collusion when you permit the boy to sneak the stolen object back into the home. He can't see the difference between sneaking it out and sneaking it in. This could become a dangerous practice and I hope you'll put an end to it at once.

Incurable Romanticist

Dear Ann: My wife says I'm a case for a psychiatrist. Before I head for the couch I'd like your opinion.

I'm an incurable romanticist. My wife and I both work. I get home before she does. It's fun to fix cocktails, turn the hi-fi on, and prepare a romantic setting.

The minute she comes in she removes her make-up, gets into a shabby bathrobe and says "I'm exhausted!" When I suggest she put on a nice house coat (I've bought her several) and comb her hair she says, "What for? To sit around with a nut like you?" She's in a high-style business and looks like a fashion model every day. Is it asking too much for her to look presentable for me? Whenever I bring up this subject she says, "Boy you need help." Do I, Ann Landers?—PSYCHO.

Dear Psycho: It could be that she needs help. I don't buy the idea that a wife should wear her stand-up girdle and sit-down shoes 18 hours a day. But if she insists on pouring ice water on her husband's romantic moods, and makes him feel like a psycho because he thinks she's still a knock-out—she's asking for trouble.

Seeing Both Girls

Dear Ann: I've been going with a fellow for years. He's 27 and I'm five years younger. The big trouble is he was married and has a little girl he's crazy about.

He tells me his ex-wife means nothing to him, yet he seems to wind up over at her house every time he gets the chance. Whenever he's late (two hours or more) and I ask what delayed him he says he stopped by to see his little girl. I'm beginning to think it's both girls he's stopping to see, but I can't prove it.

I have a wonderful job and could get a transfer to any state in the country. My mother thinks I should leave town and forget this fellow. I love him and I'd marry him tomorrow if he'd say the word. What's your advice?—LADY BUG.

Dear Lady Bug: Fly away.

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How to Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Mom Whyte In Business Once More

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Bertha Mom Whyte is back in business—but with a difference.

The 15 children now sheltered at her Whytehaven children's mission all have their parents with them.

The mission was closed to children under the care of Mrs. Whyte and her staff after a court ruled there was neglect in the home.

Earlier the provincial health and welfare department had "raided" Whytehaven and removed more than 100 children, taking them to various institutions. Most were returned to their parents during the court hearing.

A LOVELIER YOU

By Mary Sue Miller

HOW TO ATTRACT WEIGHT. A lovely writes: I am much too thin and just cannot gain a pound, no matter how I try. I would appreciate your advice.

For all slim-Janes, the advice on gaining weight is this:

1. Have a medical check-up. Underweight sometimes has its source in a physical disturbance. When the trouble is diagnosed and treated, your weight begins to climb.

2. Check up on your own eating habits. Do you eat three well-balanced meals every day? Do you drink at least six glasses of milk? Does your calorie count average out to 3200 daily?

If not, you must increase your intake. Do it gradually—eat a little more than you desire at each meal. Also deliberately try to acquire a taste for foods you now dislike.

3. Check up on your health habits. You must get nine hours sleep when possible, a fifteen-minute rest before dinner or an evening engagement. Moreover, you require large amounts of fresh air, moderate amounts of exercise. But mostly you need to develop a calm attitude. Hustle and nerves are all that keep many a damsel thin.

Following these suggestions, you'll attract pounds like the Pied Piper, the children of Hamelin.

Shopping With Sally

Stand in Line For Good Buys

If you're first in line at your grocer's some good buys will come your way this weekend.

New arrivals in the produce line will perk up jaded appetites and perhaps provoke a little praise from your family.

In good supply but down in volume are McIntosh apples, retailing at $2.49 for a "pak" of 20 pounds. The bump was taken out of the last two year's bumper crops and this year's apples are not large. By-the-bye, this juicy red fruit will sell at about 15 cents.

Locally-grown tomatoes are looking wonderful considering the rough growing season the local growers have had this summer. Best bet for home chili sauce or catsup makers would be to take a car ride out to Saanich where the red fruit can be bought for a mere pittance.

First of the Florida grapefruit is in this week. Although not quite up to standard as far as good flavor is concerned, the fruit would be a breakfast treat. Also, on the debit side is the price—two for 39 cents.

Another first is in the spud department. The excellent Netted Gems have arrived on the market in good supply. There are still oodles of White Rose potatoes on the market. Prices seem to vary from 10 pounds for 55 cents to 20 pounds for 59 cents. I suggest you shop around for value on this staple product.

The very popular Hyslop crab apple has been shipped in from the Okanagan for this weekend. Prices vary from a five pound cello bag for about 49 cents to the forthcoming junior box of 20 pounds that will sell at a reasonable price if you're a home-canner.

If you want to buy wine grapes, do it this weekend—the supply won't last forever. Speaking of grapes, the lip-smacking Concord grapes from the Okanagan have arrived. It's also a soon-over deal and if you want to make grape jelly or jam, the suggestion from dealers is "Buy Now." Retail price around town is about $1.39 a basket.

Starting to show in quality and quantity is local corn at a variety of prices. Also local broccoli and cauliflower for cool weather meal favorites.

Use This Home Recipe Plan to Lose Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky unsightly fat right in your own home. Use this recipe plan yourself. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full twice a day and follow the Naran plan. If your first purchase does not show you the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow the easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

TORONTO (CP)—A magistrate Wednesday convicted Kearney, "I don't think I Lloyd Kearney of assaulting his wife, then reversed his decision after Kearney and his wife swapped insults in the courtroom. "I think the worst penalty I could impose is to make you both live together," Magistrate J. L. Prentice told them.

"Anything but that," pleaded Kearney. "I don't think I would live too long."

Mrs. Kearney alleged that her husband drank nine bottles of beer, then knocked his son Frank from a chair, emptied a bottle of beer over his wife, slugged her with the empty bottle and jabbed it in Frank's eye.

Meany Won't Have Communists But Segregation's Different

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — States unions instead of adopting a hard, mandatory ban.

The dispute at the AFL-CIO convention pitted George

Meany, AFL-CIO president, against Philip Randolph, Negro chief, of the Sleeping Car Porters' Union and an AFL-CIO vice-president.

Randolph demanded elimination of racially segregated union locals.

Meany exploded: "That's your policy. Well it's not my policy. I'm for the democratic rights of Negro members to maintain a union if they want to."

"Who the hell appointed you as the guardian of all the Negro members in America?" Randolph: "I don't believe members of a union have the right to maintain a Jim Crow local."

Meany: "Well, I believe that a group of members of a Negro union that want to stay the way they are, have a right to stay that way."

Randolph: "Well, what about a group of members in a union that want to have a Communist-dominated union?"

Meany: "They can't have it and belong to this federation."

Randolph: "Well they ought not to have it as a Jim Crow local either."

Meany: "That's where you and I part company, Phil."

Trade Parley Encouraging To Fleming

LONDON (CP) — Finance Minister Fleming said Thursday he is "encouraged to believe" that Britain and other Commonwealth countries will take further action soon to chip away the barriers that still hamper Canadian exports.

The finance minister listed this as one of the major results of the first ministerial meeting of the Commonwealth economic consultative council, an outgrowth of last year's Montreal conference.

The two-day meeting which ended Wednesday demonstrated the "strong sense of Commonwealth purpose" of the Commonwealth countries and British colonies represented, Fleming said.

The minister left London Thursday in an RCAF Comet for France where he is to visit a Canadian air base.

He returns to Canada today and this weekend flies to Washington for the annual meetings of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund.

"FOREST" CEDAR SIDING

WHAT IS FOREST SIDING?

Made of dry 1x4" stock in 10 and 12-inch widths. "FOREST" siding is a new type of siding obtained from special selected cedar logs sawn to show the beauty and character of knots, burls, etc.

APPEARANCE?

For homes and buildings where a distinctive and pleasing appearance is desired, enhanced by heavy shadow lines. Siding is 12 inches wide and 12 inches deep in the rustic appearance of this grade.

WHAT ARE ITS QUALITIES?

"FOREST" siding, with its substantial thickness and greater wood volume, adds to the structural strength and solidity of the building. The design of "FOREST" siding ensures a tight weather seal at the lap which, together with its thickness and flush-to-base principle, makes excellent material from the INSULATION standpoint.

"FOREST" siding represents an economy to home-builders. Costing less than most other types of siding, the lap design ensures easy fitting and speedy application at less labor cost.

HOW IS IT APPLIED?

As easily and quickly as common shiplap. Each piece of "FOREST" siding fits snugly on the one below and requires only one mitre cut.

HOW CAN IT BE FINISHED?

If a natural finish is desired, use equal proportions of raw linseed oil and any well-known brand of waterproof sealer. This will protect the wood surface, but also brings out the natural beauty of the knots and the grain. If a colored finish is desired, "FOREST" siding can easily be painted. It is recommended that a sharp instrument be used to score the finished surface of the wood grain, where it will not show to stop formation of a vapor barrier.

LOT CENTRE

We have specialized in obtaining better lot values. If you are going to build a new home there is nothing that will protect your investment more than the proper lot and its location.

From our experience in the development of better areas in Victoria we are in a position to advise you of better building sites and their future. Some of our developments are: Sherwood Oaks, Alpine Crescent, Camrose, San Juan, Huntington Park, Shoreline, Baywood, Montclair Park, Rolling Hills.

From the results of independent surveys that have been taken, we have a good idea of the probable increase in value of land. This increase in value on a home built on a good lot is even greater.

Houses built in Sherwood Oaks have increased in price as high as 30% of cost.

We refrain from handling lots in the poorer districts because a home built on these lots will not hold its value. This has been borne out by the difficulties people are having in selling their homes in subdivisions located in poorer areas. We sincerely hope that the public is aware of the importance of their future home as an investment.

Here are two choice lots in areas where the land values are increasing at the greatest rates in Victoria.

Police Find Bomb

Foiled Gunman Dies In Holdup Battle

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — A daring gunman kidnapped the manager of a branch of the Cleveland Trust Company Wednesday and tried to hold the banker's family hostage in an unsuccessful robbery attempt. He shot himself to death when cornered by police.

A woman accomplice and another man believed involved in the plot were sought by police.

The robber's body was found in the basement of the bank after an hour-long gunfight with police. Bank employees held captive in the bank covered as the shots were exchanged. The robber had released the employees before the final police fusillade.

When no further shots were fired by the robber, police entered the West Side branch bank and found him dead.

The bizarre stickup began when one robber and a female accomplice broke into the home of manager Herbert Fox. They tied up his wife

Winnipeg Surrenders Platform to Wife

WOODFORD, England (UPI) — Sir Winston Churchill was ruled out of order Wednesday night by his wife.

Sir Winston and his wife Clementine appeared in the back room of the local pub where Conservative party supporters officially adopted the former prime minister as their candidate in the Oct. 8 parliamentary election.

After making a short acceptance speech, 84-year-old Churchill grinned and said, "Now I would like you to listen to my wife. You can see that we get along quite well."

Lady Churchill, noticing that the former prime minister hadn't bothered to wait for the meeting chairman to handle the introduction, rose and replied, "It is all very well for him to say we get along very well together, but he has just been usurping the function of the chairman."

Lady Churchill said. The audience roared.

Sir Winston winked at the crowd and waved a hand in a gesture of surrender to his wife.

Girl in Bay Slain?

Police, Coroner Differ on Theories

BOSTON (AP) — A week after pretty Lynn Kauffman, 23, died in Boston harbor's murky waters in a shipboard tragedy, the cause of her death Thursday remains officially in dispute.

The medical examiner who performed an autopsy on the battered body of the talented assistant of a university professor withheld his signature from the death certificate, saying circumstances have not been explained to his satisfaction.

But Capt. Joseph F. Fallon, head of Boston's police homicide squad, said he leans toward a suicide theory, with accidental death a second possibility.

"Her death did not come about from any violent assault perpetrated by anyone," Fallon said.

Dr. Michael A. Luongo, the medical examiner, declined both theories.

He said Fallon's opinions had been conveyed to him, that he had studied the evidence and "in my opinion the suicide theory does not hold up."

Discounting both suicide and accident Luongo said: "In my opinion this girl drowned after receiving multiple injuries severe enough to incapacitate her.

"The type of injuries and their distribution, and their multiplicity are such as to be consistent with multiple impacts rather than injuries in a fall from a ship, under the circumstances portrayed to me."

Fallon supported his theories by disclosing that upon her arrival here from Singapore aboard the Dutch steamship Utrecht the divorcee had received "very distressing news" which "we are certain drove her to the depths of despondency and caused her to alter her future plans."

Fallon declined to elaborate.

Lawyer Asks New Program

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada should admit that it has failed to give proper treatment to drug addicts and should start a program to prevent new addicts, a Vancouver lawyer said Wednesday.

City prosecutor Stewart McMorran told a meeting of the English Speaking Union that new addicts could be discouraged "by taking the profit and glamour out of addiction."

"The people we should be aiming at are those who can't be got because they are never in possession of drugs but are gaining the profits," he said.

Mr. McMorran said that laws governing the problem should be revised "but I am not suggesting how the law should be re-written."

New York Slum Traps Breed Crime—Judge

JUDGE SAMUEL LEIBOWITZ
... 'get on the radio'

Polygamy Probe Bogs Down

FARMINGTON, Utah (AP) — An investigation into polygamy in northern Utah is running into resistance but a grand jury foreman says the jury will continue efforts to stamp out the practice.

One indictment has been issued charging Gerard van Hoff with unlawful cohabitation, but Hoff has left the area.

Jury foreman Henry Frederiksen says many polygamists—he did not specify the number—have left since the jury began its investigation several weeks ago. He says many persons who sympathize either with the idea of polygamy or the families involved have become irritated when subpoenaed to appear before the jury, or they have become what he termed "prone to defy the law."

Frederiksen says the jury will issue reports on what he calls the "unhealthy conditions" the jury has found among polygamous families.

NEW YORK (UPI) — A judge testifying in the Senate juvenile delinquency hearing yesterday called New York City a slum trap for immigrants.

Kings County Judge Samuel Leibowitz said public officials have "compounded the evil" by not speaking out against the influx of migrants. He was referring specifically to the recent movement of Puerto Ricans into New York.

Leibowitz called on Mayor Robert Wagner to "get on the radio and speak out to tell these people what our conditions are here." The New York City Puerto Rican population now is estimated at more than 600,000.

New York City council president Abe Stark, in a statement prepared for this second day of Senate subcommittee hearings here, called for an emergency $100,000,000-a-year federal subsidy program to combat teenage crime and violence.

YOUTH ACT
He said it could prevent 2,000,000 youngsters from turning to crime, at a cost of less than $50 per child per year. Stark also called for Congressional approval of a National Youth Act to be headed by a national co-ordinator working through regional offices.

Leibowitz, formerly an outstanding criminal attorney, told of taking the mayor and a Brooklyn grand jury on a slum section tour last February.

HOLES IN WALLS
"In one section, we went into a 10x12-foot room where a family of six was living," he said. "There were no windows, no bathroom; there were holes in the walls and just one bed. Three boys slept on the bed with their mother. The mother had to sit on the bed at night to beat the rats off that came from the halls."

"The father slept on the floor and the youngest baby slept in a cradle. The place was a firetrap."

OLD SETTLEMENT
Richibucto in New Brunswick was a large Indian village before the first white settlement in 1787.

Freak Stamp Worth $150

WINNIPEG (CP)—Albert Stern, Winnipeg stamp dealer and treasurer of the Winnipeg Philatelic Society, says the price of misprinted Seaway stamps is settling down between $150 and $200 each.

He said this was the opinion of dealers and collectors. Mr. Stern said he was offering owners of the freak stamp $150 a copy and had a market for them at about $200 a copy.

Four Flee from Flames In Kamloops House

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Four persons escaped uninjured from their flaming home yesterday after a passing logger raised the alarm.

The unidentified logger stopped his truck and ran to the house when he saw flames engulfing an attached garage.

C. M. (Pat) Cascadden, manager of the Abeline Construction Company, his wife, two-year-old son and house-keeper reached the street safely.

Loan Interest 1,125 Per Cent

TORONTO (CP) — The Supreme Court of Ontario was told Wednesday a farmer who borrowed $150,000 found later he owed $400,000 to pay back the loan.

Russell Payton, counsel representing Mr. Douglas, said the interest rate on one of the loans made to his client was 1,125 per cent.

The defendants are Melvyn Paul Rubinoff and Daniel Stein, trustees; Sheraton Investments Limited; A. O. Ritchie and Company Limited; Harold Linden and North Penturn.

Mr. Justice George T. Walsh reserved decision on the request to have the three separate actions heard simultaneously.

Said Mr. Payton: "To get some $150,000, the plaintiff found he was owing about $400,000. He was paying $56,000 a year as true costs of the loan, and in the interval, the plaintiff had paid off $40,000 in interest."

Ottawa Pressing East Coast Links While West Coast System 'Decays'

COURTENAY—Comox MLA Dan Campbell unleashed a broadside yesterday at the federal government's apparent rejection of a subsidy for Victoria's ferry service.

"The reason that the federal government did not go for the $150,000 subsidy on the Victoria run is wrapped up in the broader picture of the crumbling away of the old coastal transportation system," he said.

"Like the Arabs, the feds are picking up their tents and silently stealing away."

"On the east coast, the feds can spend $250,000 on surveys in what appears to be a serious intent to bridge Northumberland Strait to Prince Edward Island.

"Here the neglect of Vancouver Island has been seen for years. From the ship strike on, the silence of Island MPs has been magnificent to behold.

"It's time that the federal government joined with B.C. in their rightful responsibility to provide the road links and car ferry services which are necessary to rebuild the coastal transportation service. "They are doing it in the east. Why not here?"

Sewer to Get Gas Check

Flame Jumps From Basin In Saanich

Saanich firemen are expected to ask for a check today of the sewer and gas systems in the vicinity of Orillia Street where flame belched up from a wash basin drain when a broken power line touched the plumbing system of a house.

Ethel E. Mercer, 3016 Orillia, said she was in her bathroom when "I heard a pop. A funny flame came up out of the wash basin" and then the lights went out.

CHANGE FUSE

Firemen changed a main fuse outside the home and found that a wire from the building to a nearby garage had broken and was blown by the wind against a water pipe.

Deputy chief Glen Robbins said the short circuit would account for the lights going out, but not for any burst of flame from the sewer system "unless there was some kind of gas there."

CHECK SEWERS

He said he would recommend that Fire Chief Joseph Law ask for a check of sewers and city gas pipes in the area "just to be on the safe side."

A quick call to firemen yesterday saved a three-suite apartment building from serious damage.

CARTON AFLAME

Aflame when firemen arrived at 432 Menzies Street was a cardboard carton which had been tacked onto a door in the basement of the building.

Fire was reported about 4.30 p.m. by a young boy who was sent to the basement to get some wood, said city Fire Chief James Bayliss. He said damage was contained to the door itself and the cause of the blaze was not known.

About 9 p.m. Saanich fire-

New City Hall Suggested By 1962

Victoria should have a new city hall ready for opening in its centennial year, 1962. Ald. Hugh Ramsay suggested yesterday.

He made the suggestion when Mayor Percy Scurrell named aldermen Arthur Dowell, Millard Mooney and Geoffrey Edgell as a special committee to "thoroughly investigate the whole question of construction of a new city hall and report to council."

"There should be a time limit," said Ald. Elmer McEwen.

"Sure, one month," said Ald. D. J. Proudfoot.

But council imposed none.

Campbell River Boy Falls, Drowns in Lake

CAMPBELL RIVER—Three-year-old Gordon O'Brien of Camp Five, 16 miles north of here, drowned yesterday when he fell from a float while playing at nearby Brewster Lake. Police said the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur O'Brien, was apparently playing on a small float with a young companion when he "tumbled in" about 4 p.m.

The body was found later by Gordon's "very young unidentified companion," police said. It is believed the boy climbed into a rowboat tied to the float and fell while climbing out. A first aid man from the MacMillan & Bloedel camp attended and applied artificial respiration, "but it was too late," a witness said. An inquiry will be held today by Dr. N. B. Hall.

Went Pull Out, Says TCA Official

'Vested Interest In Triangle Run'

If Trans-Canada Air Lines boosts Victoria-Seattle-Vancouver fares when it switches from obsolete DC-3s to Viscounts, it won't be because the bigger planes are less efficient.

"There is no doubt that the Viscount is a more efficient aircraft," Herbert Seagrim, TCA vice-president in charge of operations said here yesterday.

REFLECTED IN FARES?

"Economics of the Viscounts would be better than DC-3 economics, but whether or not this will be reflected in fares I don't know," the one-time Victoria-Vancouver-Seattle TCA pilot told The Colonist.

Early this year a Victoria delegation which conferred with top TCA officials at Ottawa said the airline had indicated fares would jump when the turbo-prop Viscounts go into service, probably sometime next year.

Mr. Seagrim indicated TCA has no intention of relinquishing the so-called "triangle run" if it can help it.

"Frankly we don't want to pull out—we have a vested interest in this run," he said.

He said he was not in a position to say whether or not TCA turns a profit on its Victoria service, and when asked if it was not correct that his company is operating on less desirable routes he said, "I can't comment on that."

INTANGIBLE ASSET

He agreed that aside from the profit-and-loss side of the picture on the triangle run there is an intangible asset in controlling the routes which feed TCA's trans-continental flights at Vancouver.

SPCA Plans Shift To New Office Site

Victoria branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will probably move offices to a new suburban site within the next two years.

Philip Wilkinson, new manager of the branch, said last night he hopes a new site for offices and kennels can be obtained in the near future.

At present, premises on the Industrial reserve at 111 Wilson, are leased from the city of Victoria and are threatened by a proposed heliport.

Mr. Wilkinson said "there is no purpose in improving our new premises if we have to leave."

"A building fund has already been started and with help from some good-natured citizens, a new site possibly in the Lake Hill area could be obtained," he said.

Little Firms Planned

City high school students will soon be going into business for themselves, if a plan backed by the Junior Chamber of Commerce receives the support of Victoria firms.

The plan is formation of a Victoria branch of Junior Achievement, a U.S.-Canadian project to sell the free enterprise system to high school students. Under the plan, groups of students form small corporations, each sponsored by a business firm.

"We're definitely going to make a start at it," Ray Farmer of the Jaycees said last night. "First step will be to get about a dozen businessmen interested. Then we'll hold a meeting next month to explain the whole plan to them."

There are 20 of the student corporations in Vancouver, and New Westminster has six. City Jaycees have been looking into the situation since February.

Each group of 15 to 20 students, with the aid of three business advisers, learns to incorporate, picks a product, and sells shares at 50 cents each. Most of the groups are launched with less than $200 capital.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The Cuban administration of Fidel Castro was heard for the first time yesterday in a United Nations general assembly policy debate. Foreign Minister Raul Roa declared that Cuba would not accept as inescapable that it must choose between capitalism and communism.

Another Explosion*U.S. Orders Probe Of Space Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The entire American program in the space probe field will undergo restudy as a result of yesterday's explosion of an Atlas-Able rocket being readied for a shot at the moon next month.

This was disclosed by an unidentified spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration shortly after the big rocket blew up on its launching pad at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

He indicated the accident might affect not only the two shots originally scheduled for October and November but others planned for the distant future.

"It's like when you have an airplane crash," the official said, "you hold an investigation to see what happened."

He added it now is unlikely there will be an attempt in October.

Although Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's, reigning Conservatives still were favorites, odds on them were narrowing. Some experts no longer ruled out the possibility of a narrow win for the opposition Laborites.

With just two weeks before polling, Macmillan and Laborite chief Hugh Gaitskill — both acting every inch the confident politician — barnstormed their way through rival 2,000-mile whistle stop tours against mounting barrages of noisy heckling.

Believes U.S. Wants Peace
But Re-Emphasizes Trade

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nikita S. Khrushchev said last night he would go into cold war talks with President Eisenhower today convinced the American people want peace.

He said the U.S. position on disarmament and trade would be the acid test whether their government feels the same way.

The Soviet premier's position was reported by guests at a dinner who sounded him out on his hectic cross-country tour and his attitude as he prepared to meet with President Eisenhower at Camp David, Md.

Three newsmen who attended the dinner said he declared: "the impression I've gained is that the United States does want agreement with us and wants to live in peace."

But then, asked by former army secretary Frank Pace Jr. whether he believed the U.S. government to be peace-loving Khrushchev replied: "That depends on the situation. If the U.S. government renounces disarmament, one would doubt its sincerity."

Trade Is the Test

Khrushchev also was said to have emphasized the importance he attaches to increased U.S.-Soviet trade. He was quoted as saying: "We want to trade with you because we believe trade is the litmus paper (test) to indicate whether you want to live in peace with us."

The dinner for Khrushchev, which followed a reception for the premier at the Soviet embassy, was given by Eric Ridder, publisher of the Journal of Commerce. Most of Khrushchev's responses to dinner questions were relayed to newsmen by reporter members of the Ridder family.

They said that for the most part the Soviet leader appeared to be in a "conciliatory" mood.

Khrushchev attended the reception and after returning here from Pittsburgh, the last stop on his 8-day transcontinental trip. He appeared in a good humor upon his arrival, smiling and waving to greeters.

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Khrushchev's travelling companion, hailed the Soviet leader's amiable frame of mind as a good sign for the talk due to get underway late today.

At Pittsburgh, Khrushchev declared that Russia intended to take over world leadership from the United States. But such statements did not appear to have the bite of some threats uttered by the premier during his tour.

Reception Warmer

Khrushchev was greeted upon his return to the capital by a crowd estimated by Washington Police Chief Robert V. Murray at 100,000 — or about half the number that turned out to see him when he arrived from Moscow 10 days ago. The crowd was orderly and gave him a somewhat warmer reception than before.

The test will come tonight when the leaders of the world's two most powerful nations sit down at Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland's quiet, Catoctin Mountains. There they will see if there is any chance of easing cold war tensions.

They will discuss until Sunday morning such East-West deadlocks as the German problem and disarmament. Then Khrushchev, and possibly the president, will give public reports.

Khrushchev obviously enjoyed himself at the embassy reception given for him by Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov. He rubbed shoulders freely with some 450 guests jammed into the building, including Vice-President Richard Nixon and pianist Van Cliburn.

He extended a warm welcome to Nixon and an even warmer one to Cliburn, the young Texan who captivated Moscow last year when he won the Tchaikovsky prize. He hugged the pianist, kissed him on both cheeks, then passed him along to Mrs. Khrushchev who did the same.

Near Mob Scene

After the reception, the unpredictable premier touched off a near mob scene by suddenly deciding to walk a block and a half to the Ridder dinner at the Sheraton-Carlton Hotel.

He was surrounded by a dozen Soviet security agents and a huge crowd of reporters and photographers, some of whom leaped over hedges and raced across lawns to keep up. Khrushchev halted and conversed volubly with a woman who called him in Russian. The woman would say only that she was from Detroit.

When he arrived at the hotel the crush of people was so great that they swept him past the official greeters and on into the lobby amidst much tumult. Guests at the dinner included 22 top U.S. businessmen and industrialists.

During his Pittsburgh stop, Khrushchev held out another olive branch by assuring a second American woman, Donna Armentas, 24, of Wickliffe, Ohio, that her family would be permitted to return to this country from behind the iron curtain.

He told her to expect her mother and brother "very soon" from Lithuania. They went there after the outbreak of Second World War and were refused permission to leave. Khrushchev made a similar promise to a Chicago couple 24 hours earlier.

Last Stop on Tour

Pittsburgh was the last stop of Khrushchev's Atlantic-Pacific tour, a trip that carried him from the halls of the United Nations to the hurly-burly of a Hollywood sound stage. There were stops at San Francisco and an Iowa farm as well.

The premier's plane landed an hour late at Andrews air force base, Md., on the outskirts of Washington.

Henry Cabot Lodge, the United Nations ambassador who accompanied Khrushchev on his transcontinental tour, reported that the Soviet premier appeared to have held up well under his rigorous schedule.

"He says he's not tired and he certainly seems to be feeling fresh," Lodge said. He is obviously in a good humor and that is what we were hoping for. He gives me the impression of being in good humor and feeling well."

Khrushchev appeared to be especially buoyed by the reception he received in Pittsburgh on the final day of his trip. He was cheered a number of times in the strike-hit steel city and also hailed as "Nick." Aides said he was "elated" by the reception.

The premier was rushed to a hospital, but there was no immediate word on his condition.

Ottawa Pressing East Coast Links While West Coast System 'Decays'

COURTENAY—Cornox MLA Dan Campbell unleashed a broadside yesterday at the federal government's apparent rejection of a subsidy for Victoria's ferry service.

"The reason that the federal government did not go for the $150,000 subsidy on the Victoria run is wrapped up in the broader picture of the crumbling away of the old coastal transportation system," he said. "Like the Arabs, the feds are picking up their tents and silently stealing away."

"On the east coast, the feds can spend $250,000 on surveys in what appears to be a serious intent to bridge Northumberland Strait to Prince Edward Island."

"Here the neglect of Vancouver Island has been seen for years. From the ship strike on, the silence of Island MPs has been magnificent to behold."

"It's time that the federal government joined with B.C. in their rightful responsibility to provide the road links and car ferry services which are necessary to rebuild the coastal transportation service. "They are doing it in the east. Why not here?"

CKDA Satellite Opposed

Duncan Chambers Back 'Own' Radio

DUNCAN—The Junior and Senior Chambers of Commerce have approved "because of recent developments" the formation of a locally-owned radio station.

Both have sent letters to the board of broadcast governors opposing an application by Victoria station CKDA for permission to erect a satellite transmitter here.

The move also rescinds the backing both groups gave to the Victoria company before local businessmen started forming the company here.

"When we approved the satellite there was a general feeling there should be a station here. Now there is going to be, so we are backing it," said Bert Evans, president of the senior chamber.

"It will mean a separate business with a payroll of more than $3,000 a month," Verne Brooks told the junior chamber Wednesday night.

Mr. Brooks, a member of the club who brought up the subject, said he is a member of the local group and did not vote on it.

Agreement Approved

SPCA to Start 'Work' In Cowichan Oct. 1

DUNCAN—A branch here of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will start "work" in North Cowichan Oct. 1.

Reeve C. A. P. Murison said at a council meeting here yesterday that an agreement approved at the meeting "will go into effect at least by then."

At the same time council passed a bylaw which forbids owners to allow unlicensed dogs, or any animal or fowl, to "run at large."

To get their animals back, owners will have to pay $5 for a dog; $20 for a stallion or bull; $10 for a boar; $5 for a horse; and $2 for each cat, fowl, rabbit or bird.

Boy Drowns After Tumble

CAMPBELL RIVER—Three-year-old Gordon O'Brien of Camp Five, 16 miles north of here, drowned yesterday when he fell from a float while playing at nearby Brewster Lake.

Police said the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur O'Brien, was apparently playing on a small float with a young companion when he "tumbled in" about 4 p.m.

The body was found later by Gordon's "very young unidentified companion," police said.

It is believed the boy climbed into a rowboat tied to the float and fell while climbing out.

A first aid man from the MacMillan & Bloedel camp attended and applied artificial respiration, "but it was too late," a witness said.

An inquiry will be held today by Dr. N. B. Hall.

Cowichan Area

School Room Space Situation 'Terrible'

DUNCAN—A school board trustee predicted last night that even before schools can be built with money from this district's next bylaw there will be overcrowding.

Finance chairman Will Peck told a delegation of irate mothers at a board meeting the room situation is "terrible" because the department of education won't let the board build until it is proven there is a need.

The board is rushing through a plebiscite for a $1,155,282 building bylaw for building schools.

The delegation came to "object" when "Trunk Road" children were notified yesterday afternoon that starting this afternoon they will be transported out of the area to Fairbridge School.

Their children were part of 26 being moved from the six-room Alexander School which has as many as 49 children in some classes.

"But why now? Why weren't we warned earlier?" asked Mrs. Thomas Brewer, 950 Trunk.

Trustee Mrs. V. W. Tarlton explained it had taken until two days ago to get two extra teachers to open two new classrooms at Fairbridge School, about four miles south of here.

39 Dockers Idled At Port Alberni

PORT ALBERNI — Thirty-nine longshoremen were idled here this morning when a seamen's picket line was placed on the entrance to the Somass division wharf at 8.

The three gangs of longshoremen were honoring the picket line of Seamen's International Union members protesting against action of Union Steamship Company in a lay-off of crew members of the Ss. Waitomo, due to load lumber here for Australia and New Zealand.

According to a picketer, 11 or 12 men were fired in the Vancouver layoff this week. The placards read—"We demand Union Steamship Co. live up to union agreement."

"Union agreement broken, crew fired without cause," "Union Steamship Co. victimizes seamen," "We demand justice in the return of our jobs."

Befouler of Bay May Be Charged

NORTH COWICHAN — A freighter which emptied its bilges in Osborne Bay at Crofton last July and almost covered the water with an oil film, may be prosecuted if it returns to Canadian waters within six months.

Council has received a letter from the steamship inspection service of the department of transport which states there was enough evidence for a court case.

The ship was the Panagiotis D. The oil stopped swimming for several days at Crofton and Maple Bay.

If the transport department prosecutes, the municipality may sue for civil damages, said Reeve C. A. P. Murison.

Koksilah School Brief Will Be Given Study

DUNCAN — Trustees of School District 65 (Cowichan) last night agreed to "study" a brief presented at a board meeting by the Koksilah Valley Taxpayers' Association.

The brief states the organization is not against the

$1,155,282 school building bylaw the board hopes to put before the voters next month, but it "feels that the present referendum places far too heavy a burden upon the taxpayers in our territory and at the same time gives very little in return."

In a 'Conciliatory' Mood

K TALKS WITH IKE TODAY

Green Challenges Reds:

Map Controls For Disarming

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Canada challenged Russia's Premier Khrushchev yesterday to put forward detailed proposals for control of the "total disarmament" program he advocates.

Assassins

Ceylon Premier Wounded

COLOMBO, Ceylon (UPI) — Two men dressed in the saffron robes of Buddhist monks shot and critically wounded Premier Solomon Bandaranaike and Labor Minister M. P. de Zoysa today.

Bandaranaike was shot point blank in the stomach with a .45 calibre automatic on the verandah of his house as he trod from the floor where he had prostrated himself in obeisance to the two men.

One of the men whipped out the automatic from under his robes and fired two shots at the premier who clutched his abdomen and ran into the house. The assassin then fired four more shots.

CRITICAL

The premier was rushed to Colombo's general hospital where an emergency operation was performed. He was reported critically wounded although he did not lose consciousness.

Other visitors swarmed over the would-be assassins and overpowered them but in the scuffle another man, his name not known immediately, was stabbed critically.

Police said the new labor minister who took office June 9 following months of bitter labor disputes that tied up Colombo's harbor was shot in the same manner at about the same time. His condition was reported as critical.

Governor General Sir Oliver Goonetilleke summoned an emergency meeting of the cabinet for 3 p.m.

Canadian External Affairs Minister Howard Green, in a policy speech to the United Nations General Assembly, underlined the necessity for foolproof controls in Khrushchev's or any other disarmament system.

Mr. Green also appealed to the Soviet Union to co-operate in efforts to regulate the peaceful use of outer space, expressing the hope that the Russians would end their boycott of the UN committee on this problem.

RADIATION HAZARDS

He also said Canada would make a proposal to this session of the General Assembly on collection of information on the hazards of atomic radiation.

Mr. Green announced that Canada, as its contribution to World Refugee Year, would admit "a substantial number" of European tubercular refugees and their families at government expense.

PLANS WELCOME

Mr. Green welcomed proposals outlined to the Assembly last week by Khrushchev and by British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd. But like Italian Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella, who spoke Wednesday, he emphasized the need for controls. Both Italy and Canada are members of the new 10-nation committee that will resume arms discussions at Geneva next February.

"For the moment," Mr. Green said, "let me say that I am entirely sympathetic with the general objective stated in Mr. Khrushchev's proposal—namely, a world without arms. We would all like to see general and complete disarmament. However, we are looking forward to more detailed proposals designed to this end, particularly with respect to control."

MUTUAL CONFIDENCE

"The central question of disarmament turns on the ability of states to find a basis of mutual confidence, and this is realistically reflected in Mr. Lloyd's proposals. That confidence must be such as to enable states to strike a balance between the obvious advantages of liquidating the burden of armaments and the political and military risks

Talk of Racing World

Talk of the racing world is Pete Clark, 17-year-old first-year apprentice from Red Bluff, Calif., who set B.C. and probably Canadian records with three winners at Sandown Park yesterday to make his total eight victories in eight starts over three days. Here he's with Loretta's Babe, his second winner, who came home by a neck in the fifth race. See story, Page 10.

Another Explosion

U.S. Orders Probe Of Space Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—The entire American program in the space probe field will undergo restudy as a result of yesterday's explosion of an Atlas-Able rocket being readied for a shot at the moon next month.

This was disclosed by an unidentified spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration shortly after the big rocket blew up on its launching pad at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

He indicated the accident might affect not only the two shots originally scheduled for October and November but others planned for the distant future.

"It's like when you have an airplane crash," the official said, "you hold an investigation to see what happened."

He added it now is unlikely there will be an attempt in October.

This was another blow to American scientists hoping to match Russia's moonstrike of a week ago. Placing a satellite in orbit around the moon is considered more difficult than hitting the surface.

Tibet Rebels Using Knives

NEW DELHI (AP)—Tibetan guerrillas are waging war against Red China's troops with knives, old firearms and whatever weapons they can capture, a brother of the Dalai Lama said Thursday.

Vancouver Soaking A Record

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouverites sloshed through the wettest September day on record here Thursday when 2.12 inches of rain fell in the 24 hours ending Thursday night. Downpour lifted September's total rainfall so far to five inches.

Odds Narrowing On U.K. Tories

LONDON (UPI)—Britain's general election race slammed into noisy high gear yesterday with signs pointing increasingly to a photo-finish Oct. 8.

Although Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's reigning Conservatives still were favorites, odds on them were narrowing. Some experts no longer ruled out the possibility of a narrow win for the opposition Laborites.

With just two weeks before polling, Macmillan and Laborite chief Hugh Gaitskell—both acting every inch the confident politician—barnstormed their way through rival 2,000-mile whistle stop tours against mounting barrages of noisy heckling.

Experts now concentrated their attention on about 50 so-called "marginal" constituencies out of a total of 630. They agreed that, barring a completely unexpected landslide, the final outcome would be decided in these seats.

Plane Blast Kills 48

BORDEAUX, France (CP)—A French DC-7 airliner bound for West Africa crashed, burned and blew up just after takeoff here late Thursday night, killing 48 of the 60 persons aboard.

Plastic Bag Menace Grows

CHICAGO (UPI)—Autumn has magnified the plastic bag menace to children, an article in an American Medical Association publication said yesterday. Shred the bags or tie them in knots and put them in a tightly covered disposal can, parents were told.

Believes U.S. Wants Peace But Re-Emphasizes Trade

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nikita S. Khrushchev said last night he would go into cold war talks with President Eisenhower today convinced the American people want peace.

He said the U.S. position on disarmament and trade would be the acid test whether their government feels the same way.

The Soviet premier's position was reported by guests at a dinner who sounded him out on his hectic cross-country tour and his attitude as he prepared to meet with President Eisenhower at Camp David, Md.

Three newsmen who attended the dinner said he declared: "The impression I've gained is that the United States does want agreement with us and wants to live in peace."

See other Khrushchev Stories on Page 2

But then, asked by former army secretary Frank Pace Jr., whether he believed the U.S. government to be peace-loving Khrushchev replied:

"That depends on the situation. If the U.S. government renounces disarmament, one would doubt its sincerity."

Trade Is the Test

Khrushchev also was said to have emphasized the importance he attaches to increased U.S.-Soviet trade. He was quoted as saying: "We want to trade with you because we believe trade is the litmus paper (test) to indicate whether you want to live in peace with us."

The dinner for Khrushchev, which followed a reception for the premier at the Soviet embassy, was given by Eric Ridder, publisher of the Journal of Commerce. Most of Khrushchev's responses to dinner questions were relayed to newsmen by reporter members of the Ridder family.

They said that for the most part the Soviet leader appeared to be in a "conciliatory" mood.

Khrushchev attended the reception and dinner after returning here from Pittsburgh, the last stop on his 8-day transcontinental trip. He appeared in a good humor upon his arrival smiling and waving to greeters.

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Khrushchev's travelling companion, hailed the Soviet leader's amiable frame of mind as a good sign for the talk due to get underway late today.

At Pittsburgh, Khrushchev declared that Russia intended to take over world leadership from the United States. But such statements did not appear to have the bite of some threats uttered by the premier during his tour.

Reception Warmer

Khrushchev was greeted upon his return to the capital by a crowd estimated by Washington Police Chief Robert V. Murray at 100,000—or about half the number that turned out to see him when he arrived from Moscow 10 days ago. The crowd was orderly and gave him a somewhat warmer reception than before.

The test will come tonight when the leaders of the world's two most powerful nations sit down at Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland's quiet Catocin Mountains. There they will see if there is any chance of easing cold war tensions.

They will discuss until Sunday morning such East-West deadlocks as the German problem and disarmament. Then Khrushchev, and possibly the president, will give public reports.

Khrushchev obviously enjoyed himself at the embassy reception given for him by Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov. He rubbed shoulders freely with some 450 guests jammed into the building, including Vice-President Richard Nixon and pianist Van Cliburn.

He extended a warm welcome to Nixon and an even warmer one to Cliburn, the young Texan who captivated Moscow last year when he won the Tchaikovsky prize. He hugged the pianist, kissed him on both cheeks, then passed him along to Mrs. Khrushchev who did the same.

Near Mob Scene

After the reception, the unpredictable premier touched off a near mob scene by suddenly deciding to walk a block and a half to the Ridder dinner at the Sheraton-Carlton Hotel.

He was surrounded by a dozen Soviet security agents and a huge crowd of reporters and photographers, some of whom leaped over hedges and raced across lawns to keep up. Khrushchev halted and conversed volubly with a woman who called him in Russian. The woman would say only that she was from Detroit.

When he arrived at the hotel the crush of people was so great that they swept him past the official greeters and on into the lobby amidst much tumult. Guests at the dinner included 22 top U.S. businessmen and industrialists.

During his Pittsburgh stop, Khrushchev held out another olive branch by assuring a second American woman, Donna Armenas, 24, of Wickliffe, Ohio, that her family would be permitted to return to this country from behind the iron curtain.

He told her to expect her mother and brother "very soon" from Lithuania. They went there after the outbreak of Second World War and were refused permission to leave.

Khrushchev made a similar promise to a Chicago couple 24 hours earlier.

Last Stop on Tour

Pittsburgh was the last stop of Khrushchev's Atlantic-to-Pacific tour, a trip that carried him from the halls of the United Nations to the hurly-burly of a Hollywood sound stage. There were stops at San Francisco and an Iowa farm as well.

The premier's plane landed an hour late at Andrews air force base, Md., on the outskirts of Washington. Henry Cabot Lodge, the United Nations ambassador who accompanied Khrushchev on his transcontinental tour, reported that the Soviet premier appeared to have held up well under his rigorous schedule.

"He says he's not tired and he certainly seems to be feeling fresh," Lodge said. He is obviously in a good humor and that is what we were hoping for. He gives me the impression of being in good humor and feeling well."

Khrushchev appeared to be especially buoyed by the reception he received in Pittsburgh on the final day of his trip. He was cheered a number of times in the strike-hit steel city and also hailed as "Nick." Aides said he was "elated" by the reception.

Thatcher

Liberal Leader Ex-CCF

REGINA (CP)—Former socialist W. Ross Thatcher was elected leader of the Saskatchewan Liberal Party Thursday and promptly promised CCF Premier T. C. Douglas "the toughest fight of his political career."

Victory over three other candidates came on the first ballot. As is customary in Saskatchewan political conventions, no vote figures were given out, but it was learned unofficially that Mr. Thatcher had won almost a four-to-one majority from the 645 voting delegates.

Mr. Thatcher, a socialist member of Parliament for 10 years, broke with the CCF party in 1955.

Strachan

University For Free CCF's Aim

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan told a Kaslo meeting last night that ultimate objective of a CCF government would be free university education.

He said "our immediate object would be the reduction of fees."

He added that a CCF government would move immediately to rectify the "poor relation" situation presently enjoyed by the University of B.C.—"a situation brought about by the deliberate and shortsighted policies of the present government."

Dad Blames Hospital In Death

Rebels Near Royal Capital

VIETNAME, Laos (Reuters)—Communist rebels were reported heading for the royal capital of Luang Prabang Thursday as the Laotian army began airlifting troops there to counter the move.
